Nixon's Watergate speech set tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon takes his defense in the Watergate case to the American people tonight with a television address about the scandal that has marred his presidency.

The chief executive worked at his Camp David retreat today on the final version of the 9 p.m. EDT speech and on a more detailed written statement to be released at the same time.

The half-hour address from the Oval Office will be carried live by all national radio and television networks.

The speech and statement comprise Nixon's first comprehensive response since May 22 to the stream of allegations flowing from what ranks as one of the greatest political scandals in the nation's history.

Confronted by opinion polls showing public confidence in his administration and him personally at all time lows, the President will seek in the television address to rally public support for his second term foreign and domestic goals.

White House officials, who contend the American people are "ready to turn the corner" on Watergate, said tonight's response will be followed in the days ahead by other public speeches and news conferences.

The first will come on Monday in New Orleans, where the President is to address the Veterans of Foreign Wars national convention. Next will come a news conference in California, where Nixon is to spend the last two weeks of the month.

While most of his aides declined to discuss specifics of tonight's speech, they indicated the President would deny advance knowledge of the bugging of Democratic National Headquarters and of the subsequent cover-up, while candidly conceding he should have paid more heed to allegations that White House and re-election committee officials were involved.

The President reportedly was ready to place a large share of the blame on fired White House counsel John W. Dean III. Until the early months of this year, Nixon sought to cope with the spreading allegations of scandal by citing an investigation he said Dean conducted showing no White House involvement.

Dean, who said he never made the investigation Nixon cited, was a principal witness in the televised Senate Watergate committee hearings.

In addition to the bugging and cover-up, Nixon is reported ready to respond to other spinoff questions—such as the burglary of Pentagon papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office.

But aides indicated the bulk of the televised address will be devoted to an effort to rekindle public confidence in the President and his administration.

Warplanes leave Cambodia

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Two U.S. Air Force F111s, glinting silver in the bright sunlight, roared low over Phnom Penh at 10.45 a.m. today to signal the end of the American bombing of Cambodia.

The two swept-wing jets, on their way back to their bases in Thailand, were followed by an OV10 forward air control plane blowing a trail of blue and white smoke as a last gesture of farewell to nine years of American air attacks in Indochina.

The OV10 did a slow barrel roll, and the bombing halt was in effect 15 minutes before the deadline set by the U. S. Congress.

Crowds in the streets paused briefly to watch the planes, but the bustle of the Cambodian capital quickly returned to normal. The people appeared unperturbed by the historic moment and the increased prospect that their city would fall to the estimated 30,000 Communist-led insurgents of the Khmer Rouge around it.

Northwest of Phnom Penh at the village of Kap Srov, Capt. Eng Taung Hak watched one of the last American air strikes against an insurgent position a mile away. As the planes flew off, he shrugged and said: "Finis bombardement."

The last group of three B52s dropped their 48 tons of bombs just before dawn. The last American bombs dropped on Cambodia were credited to Maj. John Hoskins, 37, of Portsmouth, Ohio, flying an A7 fighter-bomber. He said he dropped his load at 10:44 a.m. in a wooded area 40 miles northeast of Phnom Penh.

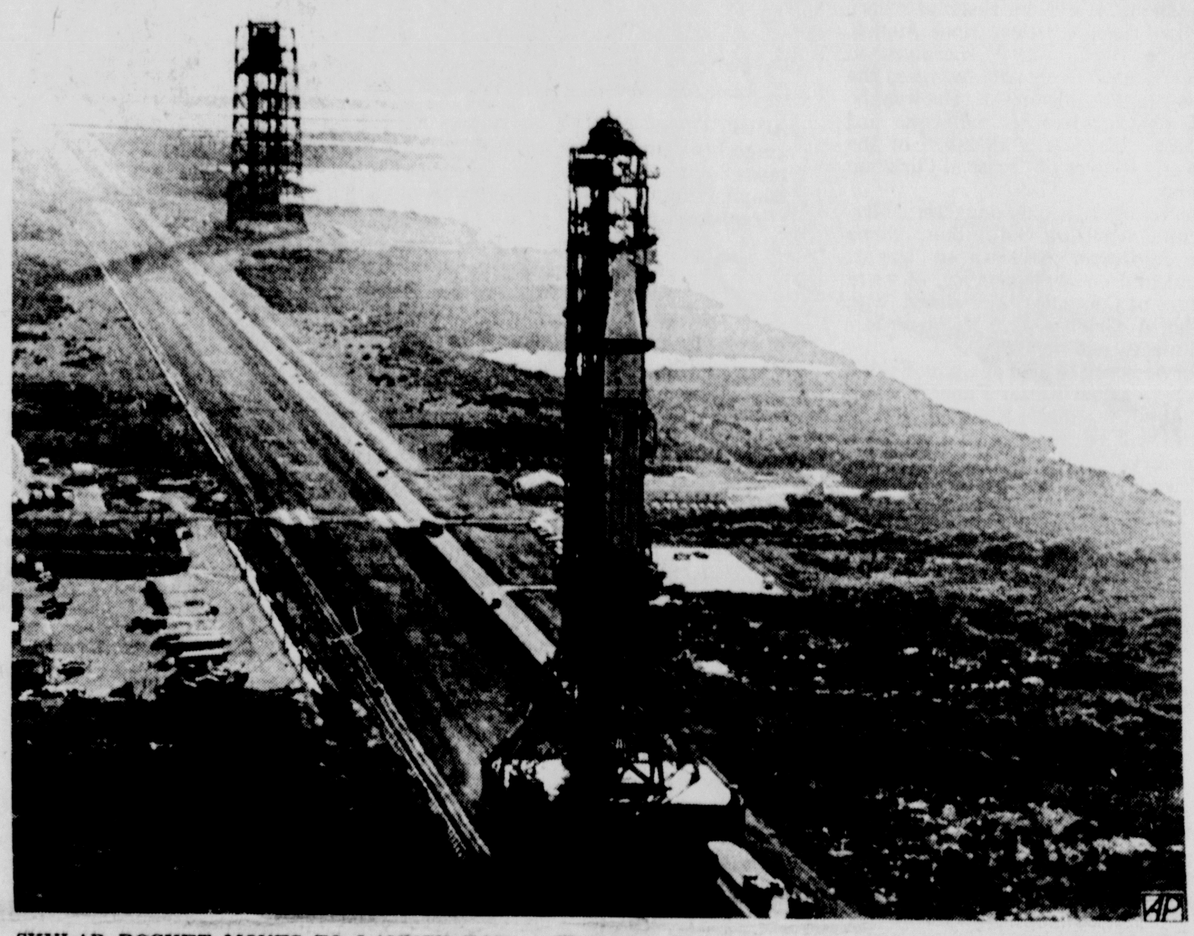

The Pentagon indicated more than 200 strikes — the usual daily average in recent weeks — were flown in the last 24 hours of the air war.

American pilots at their bases in Thailand telephoned their wives back home but held no special celebrations. The Pentagon said earlier that most combat crews and planes would remain in Southeast Asia for a time, and the White House said again that the Nixon administration would do "everything within the law" to support the government of Cambodia. Pentagon sources said U. S. reconnaissance and cargo flights in Cambodia would continue.

The bombing halt which the U. S. Congress forced President Nixon to accept ended the longest aerial campaign in the history of warfare. The 7.4 million tons of bombs and other explosives dropped on North and South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia was three times the amount U. S. planes dropped in World War II and 10 times the amount in the Korean War.

The end of the bombing removed a protective shield that slowed but did not stop the advance on Phnom Penh of the Khmer Rouge, who control two thirds of Cambodia. There was no indication yet whether the insurgents would make an allout drive to take the city.

Col. Am Rong, the chief spokesman for the Cambodian military command, expressed confidence that the army could defend Phnom Penh without the support of the U.S. bombing. But his confidence was not shared by foreign observers in the city.

Many scandal questions remain

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly three months ago President Nixon pledged "to set forth the facts" about the Watergate scandal as additional questions were raised.

Since that May 22 statement, in the early days of Senate hearings, questions have piled up with numbing rapidity. Tonight the President makes his latest public statement—the eighth in a series that began at a news conference Aug. 29, 1972, when Watergate was two months old.

He said then that John W. Dean III, the White House counsel, had conducted a complete investigation and added this this oft-quoted statement:

"I can say categorically that his investigation indicates no one in the White House staff, no one in this administration presently employed, was involved in this very bizarre incident."

As an early star witness in the Senate Watergate hearings, now in recess, Dean said he hadn't made any investigation. "I would have been the last to say unequivocally, as the President so stated, that no one presently employed at the White House had any advance knowledge of the matter," he testified.

As one indication of the slow speed at which the Watergate issue took hold, Nixon had held two other news conferences between the June 17 break-in at Democratic party headquarters and his statement of Aug. 29. At neither was he asked about Watergate.

The question arose, however, Oct. 5, 1972, when a reporter asked whether the administration and the public would be served "if you people would come through and make a clean breast about what you were trying to get done at the Watergate?"

The President noted the investigation conducted by the FBI involved 133 agents, 1,800 leads and 1,500 interviews and said he agreed with the effort because "I wanted to make sure that no member of the White House staff and no man or woman in a position of major responsibility in the Committee for the Re-election had anything to do with this kind of reprehensible activity."

Nixon's next statement on Watergate, at a news conference March 2, spoke again of Dean's investigation and noninvolvement of White House personnel at the time of Watergate. He promised cooperation with the Senate committee, then gearing up, but said "no president could ever agree to allow the counsel to the president (Dean) to go down and testify before a committee."

By mid-March, L. Patrick Gray III was deeply involved in confirmation hearings to be permanent FBI director, and the Senate asked that Dean testify. On March 12, Nixon issued guidelines on executive privilege and two days later Dean wrote the committee declining to appear under those guidelines.

Nixon led off his March 15 news conference by announcing the opening of a U.S. liaison office in Peking, but the first question concerned his refusal to let Dean testify. Nixon reportedly was disturbed that his Peking announcement was relegated to a secondary role.

Grants awarded for expansion of fluoridation

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Grants totaling $57,471 have been awarded to the Ohio Department of Health to implement a program to provide water fluoridation equipment to Appalachian communities, it was announced today.

Dr. John W. Cashman, director of the health department, said the goal is to provide the necessary equipment to provide fluoride for 29 water supplies, serving 100,000 persons.

The purpose is to attack the problem of dental decay among children in Appalachian Ohio.

He said a survey showed 87 per cent of the second graders in the region had dental problems, compared with 41 per cent in cities with fluoridated water supplies.

Beef ceiling skirmish due

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Another skirmish in the battle of the beef ceiling was due today as a federal judge in Philadelphia promised a ruling on the latest of a series of suits to end the freeze. The score so far: Government 3, Meat Industry 0.

The latest suit, pending before U.S. District Court Judge Louis Bechtle, was brought by Salsburg's Meats of Shillington, Pa.

Harvan Nathan, president of the discount store operation, asked the judge to declare the freeze on beef unconstitutional as a "deprivation of property without due process of law."

Nathan, who said his firm does an annual business of $1.5 million, said he had lost more than $21,000 since July 1. "We are buying live cattle on the open market at prices well in excess of the allowable retail price for meat," he said.

Similar pleas for injunctions against enforcement of the ceiling have been rejected by federal judges in San Francisco, Seattle, Wash., and Lincoln, Neb.

Wholesale and retail beef prices remain under a ceiling until Sept. 12. Other foods were freed from most controls on July 18 and the freeze on prices of nonfood items began to thaw Monday when Phase Four took effect.

The governors of Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Idaho and New Mexico asked President Nixon on Tuesday to lift the beef ceiling.

They said prices of poultry, pork and lamb are rising at an excessive rate as a result of a beef shortage and added: "Present distortions in this region include severe reduction in activity in cattle raising and feed lot operations and the shutdown or reduction in the number of processing and packing plants..." Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz says there is no real danger of a food shortage. He told a news conference in Madison, Wis., on Tuesday that "we always have a year's reserve of beef on the hoof in this country." He also said that Americans consume only a fraction of the corn, soybeans and wheat the nation produces.

No matter what the reason, there was no beef on the counter in many areas.

The beef section of the meat counter at an A&P supermarket in New Orleans used to stretch for 25 feet. On Tuesday, it was only about five feet long. Filling up the rest of the space were cheeses, pickles, seafood and salads.

Wheat prices rose again on U.S. markets Tuesday, spurred by worldwide demands and reports that crops would not be as large as predicted. Robert M. Green, secretary of the National Macaroni Manufacturers Association, said wheat sales to foreign countries could drive the price of macaroni to 50 cents a pound or more. The price now is between 35 and 39 cents a pound, he said.

Wheat futures — contracts sold for delivery at a later date — topped $5 a bushel on the Minneapolis Grain Exchange on Tuesday for the first time in history.

Prices for iced broiler chickens were sharply lower, however. Analysts said consumer resistance to high prices — 90 cents a pound in some areas — were responsible for an accumulation of supplies and a decrease of demand.

Agnew offers prosecutors access to personal records

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saying "I have nothing to hide," Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has offered federal prosecutors access to his personal records in a probe of kickbacks and political corruption in Maryland.

Agnew carefully made a distinction between his personal papers and the official records of the vice president, apparently to avoid comparisons between his decision and President Nixon's refusal to turn over White House documents to prosecutors in the Watergate affair.

"You understand that, by making these records available to you, I do not acknowledge that you or any grand jury have any right to records of the vice president," Agnew said in a letter Tuesday to U.S. Atty. George Beall in Baltimore.

"Nor do I acknowledge the propriety of any grand jury investigation of possible wrongdoing on the part of the vice president so long as he occupies that office. These are difficult constitutional questions which need not at this moment be confronted."

Agnew also said he would be happy to meet with the prosecutors to answer any questions. His records, while they would be made available for inspection, were not to be removed from his office, he said.

The vice president said his staff has been instructed to give Beall and his assistants the fullest cooperation and, if necessary, to make copies of any of the records. He said these copies can be compared with the originals to verify their accuracy.

There was no indication when agents from Beall's office would arrive to examine the records.

Beall asked Agnew last week to voluntarily turn over his financial and tax records dating back to 1967 for examination in connection with a federal grand jury investigation of possible violations of tax, bribery, extortion and conspiracy laws.

Testimony related to Agnew in the investigation is expected to be presented to the grand jury later this week or early next week.

Meat shortage could bring healthier hearts

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Today's runaway meat prices possibly can bring a dividend of fewer heart attacks and strokes, says a food expert.

Americans generally eat too much fat and some meats are a major source of it, says Mary Winston, nutritionist of the American Heart Association.

A high intake of fat is considered harmful to the heart, she explains. Being overweight also taxes your heart.

So, eating smaller portions of meat "would be a plus factor." So would the right choices of vegetables to substitute for the proteins contained in meat.

During World War II, the death rate from coronary heart attacks went down in countries where once-rich diets were cut back in total fat and calorie content.

But a wrong choice of substitutes for meat could be harmful, Mrs. Winston cautioned in an interview.

"Don't just substitute omelet for beefsteaks because eggs are cheaper. The yoke of one large egg contains 250 milligrams of cholesterol. Our Heart Association recommends you try to take in no more than 300 milligrams a day, averaged out over the week."

An excess of cholesterol, a waxy material, is blamed for clogging arteries of the heart and brain and producing heart attacks or strokes.

Food prices may well have profound effects on American patterns of eating, and housewives need some guidelines to assure good nutrition for their families, says Mrs. Winston. She was nutrition consultant to the new "American Heart Association Cookbook," containing more than 400 recipes from appetizers to desserts.

For years, Americans have been getting some 40 per cent or more of all their calories from fats. Heart experts urge reducing it to 30 per cent, with less of the total fat being the "saturated" type, which hardens when left standing at room temperature.

The fat around meat is highly saturated.

Three ounces of lean beef provides 8.4 grams of fat and 189 calories.

Three ounces of chicken provides 5 grams of fat, and 150 calories.

But that's for chicken without the skin. Eat the skin, and the three ounces give you 14 grams of fat, and 248 calories, because most of the chicken fat lies on the inside of the skin.

Three ounces of most fishes supply 4.5 grams of fat and 126 calories. The fat in fish is unsaturated.

Meats, poultry and fish, eggs, skim and whole milk, yogurt and cottage cheese, are "complete" proteins containing all eight proteins considered essential to good nutrition, plus others.

Vegetables differ in content of the essential eight. Soybean contains seven, lacking one called methionine. Corn meal has that, though, so a combination of the two foods make up a diet as effective as one based on meat.

Various other combinations fill the protein demand, such as noodles with kidney beans and walnuts, grains and dried beans. Rice is not a "complete" protein. But a little meat added to it wipes out the deficit, making it quite sufficient.

On other points of advice, Mrs. Winston says:

—The potato is much maligned as "fattening." But it is the butter, the sour cream, and other goodies that people put on the potato that makes it high in calories.

—If you are cutting back on butter and milk, which are good sources of iron and vitamin A, consider having beef liver once a week, because it's another good source of these nutrients.

—Frozen dinners "are terrible, nutritionally and economically."

—An all-vegetable diet could be deficient in vitamin B12, ordinarily supplied from meat and dairy products, but green leafy vegetables do contain it.

—To fill up, don't go for snacks like potato chips, cheese puffs, things that contribute little nutritionally.

—Many Chinese dishes are good, because they contain lean meat with vegetables that meet the protein needs.

Solons applaud bombing halt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators who were active in demanding an end to the U.S. combat role in Indochina expressed relief today that the American bombing of Cambodia has ended.

"The country can thank God that another phase of American involvement in the Indochina war has ended, hopefully the last," said Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa.

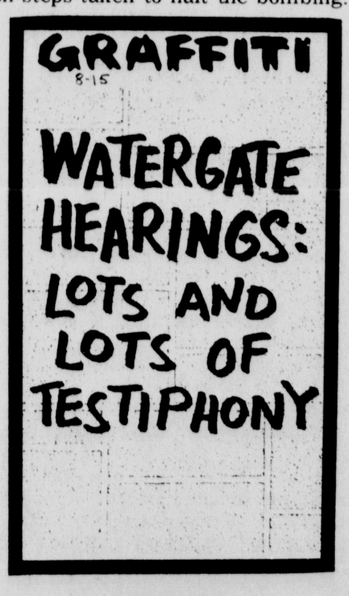

Hughes said he hopes legislation passed by Congress to force an end of the Cambodia bombing as of midnight Tuesday will be obeyed.

But he said "Congress and particularly the Armed Services committees will be alert to investigate the slightest hint of violations."

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., sponsor of the amendment that led to the bombing halt and an end to all other U.S. combat activities in Indochina, said he is confident it will be adhered to by the administration.

Eagleton said he does not believe there is any way the heavy bombing that has been carried on around Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital, could be continued secretly.

Rep. Joseph P. Addabbo, D-N.Y., an author of antibombing legislation, announced last week he would be in Thailand at midnight Tuesday to check on steps taken to halt the bombing.

Orlett voting probe rejected

By PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A joint House-Senate Ethics Committee decided Tuesday it had no jurisdiction in the first case it was handed while legislative leaders signed 106 bills and sent them to Gov. John J. Gilligan for final approval.

By a 6-5 party line vote, the Ethics Committee decided not to look into a complaint that Rep. Edward J. Orlett, D-34 Dayton, was off the floor July 10 when he was recorded as voting on several bills.

In addition to the bills signed, the legislative leaders also signed two constitutional amendments for the November ballot.

One provides for a Vietnam War veterans bonus and the other would put municipal and county courts into the 1968 modern courts amendment, making judges in those courts eligible for in-term pay raises.

The hearing into the Orlett votes never got off the ground as the 12-member committee, with one of six Republicans absent, convened. It bogged down first on procedural questions, then upon constitutional grounds.

"It was regretable and avoidable that the committee broke down on a partisan basis on what should have been a nonpartisan issue," said Sen. Paul E. Gillmor, R-2 Port Clinton, chairman.

The committee was created last December as part of a bill jumping legislator's salaries from $12,750 to $14,000 a year. The legislature recently boosted them again to $17,000.

Rep. Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, offered the motion to overule the chairman on his ruling the hearings were valid. Democrats provided the muscle for the vote, since Sen. William H. Mussey, R-14 Batavia, was absent.

ADDITIONAL BODIES IN TEXAS KILLINGS—Authorities wield shovels gingerly as they uncover another teen-age corpse in the bizarre homosexual mass killings in Texas. Four bodies were found in shallow graves near High Island, bringing to 27 the total number of victims accounted for. (AP Wirephoto)

2 youths indicted

HOUSTON (AP) — A grand jury has indicted two youths in the Texas mass murders and an official says more indictments are in the works.

The jury returned indictments Tuesday against Elmer Wayne Henley Jr., 17, and David Owen Brooks, 18, in connection with the country's worst confirmed mass slayings.

The bodies of 27 teen-aged victims of the homosexual slayings over the past three years have been unearthed since last week. Nine of the bodies have been identified.

Three indictments named Henley, who had been charged with two slayings in Houston and three in San Augustine County. He has told police he took part in nine killings.

The jury returned one indictment against Brooks. He had been charged with one murder in Houston but has said he did not kill anyone.

One indictment alleged both Brooks and Henley killed William Ray Lawrence, 15, "by strangling him with a cord and in some manner and by some means, instruments and weapons to the grand jury unknown" on July 10.

The other two indictments accuse Henley of strangling Marty Ray Jones with a cord and of shooting to death Charles C. Cobble. The two 17-year-olds were slain July 27.

The grand jury returned the indictments after hearing 6½ hours of testimony from police detectives and Billy Ridinger, 20, who entered and left the jury room with a brown paper sack over his head.

Brooks said in a statement to police that he was at the home of Dean Allen Corll "when they got Billy Ridinger.... And I believe the only reason he is alive now is that I begged them not to kill him."

A source in the investigation quoted Henley and Brooks as saying they received money for procuring youths for Corll, 33. The source said the victims were taken to Corll's home, tied to a board "spreadeagled," sexually assaulted and later murdered.

It was Corll's death at Henley's hands last Wednesday that brought the mass slayings to light.

Dist. Atty. Carol Vance said Corll was "probably responsible for, or in on, most of the killings in which the bodies have been found."

However, Vance told newsmen that more indictments were possible and that he expected to present more evidence to the grand jury, possibly Thursday. "There is much more to be done," he said.

"This is not going to be all the indictments," said Asst. Dist. Atty. Mike Hinton, who has been conducting the district attorney's investigation. "What is holding us up now is identification of the bodies. Under Texas law, you can't indict a person for murder unless the identity of the deceased is established."

The search for further bodies has been at least temporarily suspended. There had been reports the death toll might be as high as 30.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices were up in dull trading today in a technical rebound after two weeks of sliding prices.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was up 2.11 at 872.82. The blue chip indicator closed Tuesday down 12.49 at 870.71, near the closing low of the year, 869,13, on June 25.

Advancing Big Board issues today held a 633-to-436 lead over losers.

On the American Stock Exchange, Syntex, up 1⅜ at 100⅝, was the volume leader. The Amex price-change index was up .01 at 22.98.

Saxon Industries, down ⅛ at 5⅛, was the Big Board volume leader, followed by: Transam Corp., unchanged at 11⅜; Loews Corp., down ¼ at 24¾: International Telephone & Telegraph, unchanged at 30¼, and Twentieth Century-Fox up ⅛ at 8.

U.N. deadlocks over sanctions against Israel

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. Security Council was deadlocked today over Egyptian and Soviet demands for sanctions against Israel for forcing down an Arab airliner last week.

All council members including the United States, Israel's chief backer, were ready to support a resolution condemning the Israeli action. But the United States was believed likely to veto anything stronger than censure.

Hinting at this, U.S. Ambassador John A. Scali told newsmen late Tuesday he saw "red flags" in some of the proposals during continuing negotiations outside the council chamber.

A council vote was expected late today or Thursday, depending on the outcome of the talks.

But in Israel, Premier Golda Meir said her government will continue to protect its citizens at home and abroad "with whatever means we have."

"We have nothing to be ashamed of — let those who censure us be ashamed," Mrs. Meir said.

Diplomatic sources reported that one obstacle to agreement on a Security Council resolution was removed when Egypt abandoned a demand that all countries be asked to halt aid to Israel enabling it to "pursue aggression."

Other proposed wording was reported still objectionable to the United States, Britain and France.

Speaking in the council debate Tuesday, Scali deplored the Israeli action as a violation of the U.N. Charter and of the rule of law in commercial aviation.

KSU evidence given to agency

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional committee that has been investigating the 1970 Kent State campus shootings has turned over its evidence to the Justice Department, including what may be the only film in existence of the actual gunfire.

Also among the evidence, according to a committee source but disputed by a department official, is information that several Kent State students can identify the National Guardsman who fired the first shot.

The fusillade of bullets that followed left four students dead and nine others wounded. The case was recently reopened by Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson.

Investigators for the House Judiciary subcommittee headed by Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., Tuesday submitted to the department records of interviews with some 48 individuals, several films and other evidence stemming from their months-long probe.

But in an interview Tuesday night, Asst. Atty. Gen. J. Stanley Pottinger, who is heading the new probe, said that little of the committee's evidence will be useful.

"It would be very unfortunate to convey the impression that some new hard evidence has occurred by virtue of sending to us old information, state information or insignificant information. And most of what we have is just that," he said.

A committee spokesman had earlier conceded that most of the evidence turned over by the committee had previously been available to investigators.

Pottinger also sent a telegram to Edwards complaining that an Associated Press story had quoted a committee staff member as suggesting that the panel had turned over information on who fired the first shot. He said such a conclusion was "inaccurate and misleading" and that he had received no such information.

The gunfire film was taken by a student from his dormitory window 400 yards from the guardsmen who were firing into a group of students during the antiwar demonstration that led to the confrontation.

But, while the footage is believed to be the only film showing guardsmen actually firing on students, spokesmen for both the Justice Department and the committee said it lacks sharpness and individual guardsmen cannot be identified from it.

Grange elects new officers

The Forest Shade Grange met Tuesday evening and elected Max Carson to the position of worthy master to succeed Winfred Morgan. In all, 18 persons were elected to office.

The literary program was presented by Miss Louise Ritter, who read several articles about farmers, including the poems, "Farm Folks," "Countryman's God," and "Our Daily Bread." Mrs. Maurice Sollars read an article on Jeanne Dixon's prediction of the Watergate scandal.

The officers elected were Max Carson, worthy master; the Rev. Ralph Gibson, overseer; Miss Louise Ritter, lecturer; David Winegar, steward; Emett Shaper, assistant steward; Mrs. Maurice Sollars, lady assistant steward; Mrs. Otties Smith, chaplain; Mrs. Robert Ritter, secretary; Russell Grice, treasurer; Otties Smith, gatekeeper; Miss Helen Terrill, ceres; Mrs. Robert Bock, pamona; Mrs. David Winegar, flora; Miss Kathy Van Dyke, junior matron; Miss Beverly Van Dyke, assistant matron, and John Wing, David Winegar and Winfred Morgan, executive committee members.

The membership also voted to meet Wednesday, Aug. 22, to paint the Grange Hall and to contribute $5 to the Ohio Grange Friendly Hills Camp Fund.

It was announced that the Pamona Grange will hold a baking and sewing contest the Madison Mills Grange Hall Aug. 29. Winfred Morgan expressed his appreciation to those who worked on the Fair booth.

The refreshment committee was composed of Mr. and Mrs. Otties Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Emett Shaper, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Rowland, Miss Ruth Smith, Mrs. Cecil Smith, and Robert Smith.

Dam ruling slated soon

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Carl Rubin said he will rule within 10 days on a suit brought by the state of Ohio to stop two federally funded dam projects in southwestern Ohio.

The U.S. Corps of Army Engineers has spent $28 million on the Caesar's Creek and East Fork reservoirs.

The suit filed by the state, several individuals and organizations contended the Corps has not complied with the National Environmental Policy Act of 1970 and other federal laws in connection with the projects in Warren and Clermont counties.

U.S. District Judge Timothy S. Hogan ordered the work stopped last month then stepped down from the case because he owns property in Clermont County. Rubin was then assigned.

Both projects are on tributaries of the Little Miami River. Caesar's Creek is in Warren County and East Fork is in Clermont County.

Ottawa County faces hunting restrictions

Deputies said the cattle belonged to Raymond Heim, on whose West Township farm the arrest was made. Two other men sighted by deputies escaped arrest, the officers said.

Barns was being held in Columbiana County Jail in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Radioactive waste disposal

A spokesman for the Natural Resources Defense Council may have a point when he asserts: "It seems clear that the AEC is not the most reliable investigator of AEC practices." That view has led this small, non-profit group of attorneys and scientists in northern California to call for an independent study of the Atomic Energy Commission's radioactive waste management policy and procedures.

The AEC itself has, perhaps unwittingly, provided much of the stimulus for demanding such an investigation. This is found in a recent Commission report on leakage of intensely radioactive material from a storage tank at the Hanford Reservation in Washington state. Some 115,000 gallons of this dangerous stuff seeped out over a period of seven weeks, the report says. It blames poor training and inadequate supervision of workers, and informs us that the leak might have been confined to only about 30,000 gallons — still an unacceptably large amount — had the leak been detected earlier.

The Natural Resources Defense Council spokesman, John Bryson, said with no small justice in commenting on these disclosures: "The report stands in sharp contrast to continual assurances by the AEC that outsiders, like the public and other governmental agencies, need not concern themselves about radioactive waste because all is being done that needs to be done."

It is clear that laxity and failure to adopt basic safety precautions contributed to the situation at Hanford. Nor is there much consolation in the recent reassurance by AEC Chairman Dixy Lee Ray that the leaks pose no "threat to life or liberty of anything else." That sounds almost flippant, and its accuracy may be questioned. Certainlythe AEC should be zealous in its concern to make sure that all possible measures are taken to guard against the dangers of environmental contamination.

There have been occasional hints that this is not being done. Just the other day, for example, the Denver Post revealed that hundreds of tons of radioactive waste are buried on the grounds at the Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant northwest of Denver. A spokesman for the firm which operates the plant for the AEC suggested that buried plutonium-contaminated material "is about as safely stored here as it possibly could be." He also said (in the words of the Denver Post account) that the material "would be removed as soon as the AEC answers the questions of long-range disposal of radioactively contaminated wastes."

It is a question that must be resolved. Meanwhile, an independent study by some governmental agency other than the AEC is not at all a bad idea.

Military 'PR' spending

The Department of Defense includes as public relations only providing news media with military activities information intended to foster good relations between the military and the public. This conveniently narrow definition enables the Pentagon to violate the ceiling set by Congress on military public relations.

That ceiling is 28 million dollars annually — a healthy sum, one would think, to spend on saying nice things about the military establishment. A report by the General Accounting Office says that in fact promotional activities "not included in public affairs expenditures" amounted to an additional 24 million dollars annually over the past two fiscal years. In short, during those two years the Pentagon spent 48 million more than Congress authorized for this purpose.

There might be some quibbling over certain items included in this total. Most of them, however, clearly fit within the public relations aura. Item: four military air teams which perform at fairs and other civic events for no other discernible purpose than to advertise the military. Item: civilian tours of military bases around the country. Item: service-related exhibits designed to extrol the glories and advantages of the military life. Item: the Defense Information School, which trains military personnel as public relations experts.

The GAO is very polite in its report: it says blandly that the Defense Department "has been too conservative in defining its public affairs activities for purposes of reporting." Translation: A lot of pertinent activities have not been included.

The GAO also suggest that the Pentagon "reexamine its position on what it includes as public relations costs." That is a suggestion in which we concur.

When Congress establishes a 28-million-dollar public relations spending ceiling and the Pentagon spends almost that much again on activities clearly intended to generate public support of the military, something is wrong.

WASHINGTON CALLING. . .by Marquis Childs

Political campaign operation

WASHINGTON — The one confession that Vice President Spiro Agnew made, if only glancingly in his press conference, gets down to the guts of the matter. Anyone who doesn't know that campaign contributions come from contractors doing business with the state is naive, he said.

The Vice President as governor of Maryland was a large and vital party of the highway operation, with contractors spending hundreds of millions of dollars to pave the state with concrete. What the grand jury in Baltimore is trying to sort out is when a campaign contribution becomes a bribe. The line between the two is almost invisible.

It is the system of contracts for contributions in which Agnew has been a willing player that should be going into. And eventually rooted out. This is far more important than whether one individual or several individuals took contractors' money meant to be paid off with a reward once the recipient was in the seat of authority.

The highway billions are entwined with Congress and every state capital in the country. The highway lobby, with the principal focus in the American Roadbuilders Association, is rated as the most powerful in Washington. The affinity with Senate and House Public Works Committees is close and mutually endearing.

An example of the bond that ties the two together is in the year-long struggle to bring out a highway bill that would yield something more than cheese parings for mass transit. Harpooned at the end of the 1972 session, the bill was wrangled over this year, ending with a Senate-House conference that went on for three months. It was in this closed-door struggle that the highway lobbyists and their Congressional allies made a last-ditch stand.

Waiting on the sidelines, asking like Oliver Twist for just a little bit more, were the advocates of help for mass transit, the starving poor relative of the highway builders. What finally came out was more than what at one time seemed possible.

Out of the Highway Trust Fund, broken for the first time, there will be $200 million for bus purchases beginning in January. In fiscal 1976 mass transit will get $800 million not restricted to any form of transportation. A few Senators from big-city states held out against the highway bulldozers.

But the triumph for mass transit pales alongside what the highway contractors walked away with. The total for interstate roads was $8.6 billion over three years and for primary and secondary roads it was $3.3 billion. This will mean additional thousands of square miles of concrete spread over the tortured earth.

Even so, this was not enough to satisfy the voracious appetite of those who want it all. Rep. William H. Harsha, of Ohio, ranking Republican member of the House Public Works Committee, demanded to know after the conference report became public that if the highway lobby is so powerful why it had not been around to block this steal from the sacred trust fund.

Behind the highway lobby is the motorcar industry and the oil companies. Here are the powers that rule the economy with one out of every six persons employed in building cars or keeping the wheels running. They may, however, have their rule challenged by a new broom in the Environmental Protection Agency.

Hopefully, Russell E. Train, appointed director after the post had been vacant for many weeks, will put a brake on the motorcar, the chief pollutant of the atmosphere. Plans have been formulated for curbing the one-driver-one-car commuter into the central city from the suburbs. Train has proved his ability and he is said to have been given ample authority to move against the pollution rapidly destroying the environment.

In calling a press conference and uttering forthright denials of the charges brought against him by the Baltimore prosecutor, Agnew made a good beginning in his own defense. That he will continue to be equally forthright, with no evasion behind legal technicalities, is important both for the Vice President and for the public belief in what is left for integrity and confidence.

For Agnew, however, there is a larger opportunity. Given his knowledge of the contracting-contribution system he could, when the dust of his own alleged involvement has cleared away, call for drastic reforms. That he will do so is highly improbable.

White House gets live yule tree

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ecology-minded families who have switched from cut to live Christmas trees will be joined by the White House this year.

The National Park Service announced Monday that this year it will transplant a tree from Pennsylvania to be planted behind the White House and used for the annual holiday observance.

In the past, huge trees have been cut in various states and erected near the White House for the two-week observance.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Commerce Director Dennis Shaul has warned consumers against salesmen pledging to cut swimming pool prices if a buyer's home qualifies as a model.

Shaul said Monday the homes of persons buying from one northeastern Ohio firm never were used as demonstrators. He said the firm grossly exaggerated the original price of the above-ground pools.

5 men get life for 8 murders

CHRISTIANSTED, V.I. (AP) — The five black men convicted of eight murders will appeal the life sentences given them at the trial's tumultuous windup.

The defendants shouted obscenities at U.S. District Court Judge Warren Young and their relatives cried Monday when the judge sentenced each of the men to eight consecutive life terms and six 15-year terms.

A mostly black jury convicted the men of the murder at the Fountain Valley Golf Club last Sept. 6 of eight persons, seven of them white. By having the sentences run consecutively instead of concurrently, the judge appeared to rule out any possibility of parole.

Dear Abby:

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Is intermarriage foe prejudiced?

DEAR ABBY: I was brought up (and I brought my own children up) to "be friends with everybody, but to marry your own kind."

Would you consider this pre-judice?

I have respect for all religions, and colors, and have friends of all denominations, but I do not condone or believe in intermarriage. I try to find the good in the individual, regardless of color, creed or origin. Marriage is difficult enough without the problems intermarriages presents.

Would you please give me your opinion?

NOT PREJUDICED

DEAR NOT: I agree, marriage IS difficult, and marrying one's "own kind" may possibly reduce the number of problems. (It may not.) But I believe in the right of every adult to marry whomever he wants. Were you to bring up your children to try to find the good in the individual, regardless of his own choice, then I would say you were not prejudiced.

DEAR ABBY: I wish you could tell me how to solve a problem which has been bothering me for a long time, but has gotten worse lately.

I am over 65 years old, and my eyesight is growing dim, even with eyeglasses. I do all my own housekeeping, cooking, washing, etc. My daughter-in-law comes here quite often, and she always points out a speck of dust I missed in a corner, or a few crumbs I overlooked on the table, or some fingerprints on my refrigerator

I am not a careless housekeeper, Abby, but I just can't see as well as I used to, and her constantly finding something I overlooked makes me feel bad. Is there some way I can let her know how much this bothers me? When I know she's coming I look for these little things she might find, but my heart grows heavy because she always finds something I missed. Help me.

HURT

DEAR HURT: The next time "The Inspector" visits, greet her with: "If you should see a speck of dust, a crumb, or a fingerprint I overlooked, please don't mention it as I do the best I can, but my eyes aren't what they used to be." And if she forgets, remind her as often as necessary.

DEAR ABBY: I am desperately in need of someone to confide in. I am an 18-year-old girl whose parents were divorced two years ago. I am living with my father who has recently started dating an attractive young girl. She is 21, and my father is 41.

My problem is that this girl has been making passes at my boy friend when my father is not around. She is so obvious. I have noticed it myself.

My father is very much in love with this girl and is even contemplating marriage. He is very wealthy, and it is my gut feeling that this girl is just after his money.

How can I warn my father without destroying his ego?

NAMELESS IN TORRENCE

DEAR NAMELESS: You can't. Love is voluntarily blind. If your suspicions are correct, you can only hope your father catches on before he gets hooked.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700 L.A. Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union is an organization of Christian women banded together for the protection of the home, the abolition of the liquor traffic and the triumph of Christ's golden rule in custom and in law.

Devotions were brought by several representatives of the counties. Miss Jean Wirtz of Farm Bureau was the guest speaker, whose topic was "Traffic Safety." Ohio has 38 organizations working concerning Traffic Safety. She urged all to give farmers plenty of space so they can farm to avoid the shortage of food.

Marcella Helser, vice president of the Ohio WCTU, also spoke, and special music was provided by a quartet from Pleasantville, a trio from Columbus, and also Curt Davis and his wife Charlotte, the great organist who has performed at the Lancaster campgrounds for the past 28 years. They broadcast from the auditorium each evening.

The group also visited the room built in memory of the late Rev. Harold Lindsey, manager of the campgrounds.

House Ways, Means Committee is slowly changing

By EDMOND Le BRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee, the shaper of tax, trade, Social Security, medicare and welfare legislation, is getting a foretaste of what it may be like to operate without the legendary leadership of Chairman Wilbur D. Mills.

The Arkansas Democrat who has headed the pivotal committee for 15 years says he will retire at the end of next year unless he can find relief from a painful back ailment.

Moreover, and quite apart from the future of its chairman, the House's oldest and perhaps most powerful standing committee is slowly changing. Like all of Congress, it is being pressed by public opinion; by subtle power shifts; by ideas brought in by newer members.

Mills, seeking medical advice and treatment, left the chair some 10 days before the congressional recess began. The committee was reaching the decision stage on the complex trade legislation President Nixon says he needs because of international negotiations beginning in Tokyo in mid-September.

Mills' temporary departure at such a time would have been almost unthinkable earlier. He is the kind of strong chairman whose views come to the fore and prevail when the committee gets down to voting. Mills does not ignore colleagues' opinions, but shapes the consensus.

Mills' absence left the responsibility for presiding and steering the legislation toward final agreement to the next-ranking Democrat, Rep. Al Ullman of Oregon.

Ullman's pinch-hitting was universally praised in separate interviews with a cross-section of the committee membership. Nevertheless, without Mills, the work perceptibly slowed down. The Mills-endorsed optimistic deadline of completed committee action on the trade bill before the recess, was not met.

Committee members said Mills, whose reputation as one of the closest-mouthed men in Congress is well earned, left no instructions with Ullman. He did not even tell colleagues or key staff members where he was going.

Rep. Herman T. Schneebeli, senior Republican member of the committee, commented, "Al is doing a bang-up job under difficulties," a judgment echoed by both liberal and conservative Democratic members.

At a final session before the recess, committee members reportedly agreed informally that Ullman will have to assume greater authority if Mills is unable to rejoin the deliberations in September.

Ullman himself, while staying away from any criticism of the chairman, told a reporter there will have to be a firm schedule and a push to get the bill to the House before Oct. 1.

Mills' seniority and influence—the two are closely linked in the House—are formidable. None of the other current Ways and Means members ever knew him as a mere colleague. He was chairman before any won the coveted election to the House's No. 1 committee.

His method of operation includes private negotiations with presidents, regardless of party, as well as other high executive officials and spokesmen for private interests in fields embraced by his committee's wide-ranging jurisdiction. Shortly before leaving Washington he had a long personal session with Nixon.

Ullman, at 59 five years younger than Mills, was overshadowed by the chairman as he moved up the seniority ladder to the position of presumptive successor. Until recently, he figured most often in the news as a spokesman for the economic interests of his state and the Northwest generally.

Considered about as fiscally conservative as Mills, he has nevertheless on occasion differed with the chairman, for example, on welfare reform.

Since last year, Ullman has been acquiring a growing national prominence by strong advocacy of basic reform of Congress' budgetary function. He is co-chairman of a special committee which is steering legislation for Congress to set up its own budget every year and exercise central control over the now scattered appropriation and revenue raising operations.

No matter who the chairman may be in the future, change has come and will continue to come to the Ways and Means Committee, which began as a temporary panel in 1789 and was made permanent in 1801.

Reform moves ponderously in the House, but the direction is clear. Power is flowing from the committees and their chairmen—who have been compared to feudal barons—to the party leaders and the caucuses composed of all members. The trend is especially significant for Democrats, who as the majority party control the committees and name the chairmen. The caucus now has an opportunity to vote individually on each chairman—a potential threat to the once-secure seniority system.

The closed rule has been a frequently used tool in the Ways and Means kit. Granted routinely in the past by the Rules Committee to all tax and similar measures, it means simply that members at large have no opportunity to offer amendments when the bill comes to the floor. They must vote it up or down in the form presented by the committee.

But the Rules Committee— now, incidentally, more closely tied to the House leadership than it has been in a generation—has let it be known it will no longer automatically grant this complete protection to bills produced by Ways and Means. Even if the committee were willing, a new Democratic rule provides that if 50 members of the caucus insist on an opportunity to offer amendments, the Democratic majority of the Rules Committee must accede. The rule has been hailed by members who long complained that tax policy was shaped, not by all the members of the House, but by the 25 who make up the Ways and Means Committee.

The likelihood that the committee would not be able to obtain a completely closed rule on the highly controversial trade legislation is one reason why Ways and Means has moved slowly and cautiously in shaping the bill.

A new House rule provides that all committee sessions, including the "mark-up" sessions where the decisions are made, must be open to press and public unless the committee votes on the record to close them. Mills moved for closed mark-up sessions. The committee sustained him—but with a surprising 10 negative votes. Even so, Ways and Means, like other committees, now must make public after executive sessions the roll calls by which decisions were arrived at.

The committee has long had an arrangement, useful to a chairman who needs to keep members in line, for handling minor tax measures that often affect only a few firms—sometimes a single one in a particular congressional district. These "members' bills" would be briefly and informally discussed in closed session; approved by the committee, and brought up on the floor with minimum debate for passage by unanimous consent. After outside organizations as well as some Congress members began analyzing and publicizing the revenue effects and the narrow application of some members' bills, objections on the floor cropped up last year. Since then, the committee has been noticeably more circumspect in offering them.

40 youngsters enrolled in camp

By JACK SOMMERS
County Extension Agent, 4-H

4-H Day Camp is in full swing for the fifth week this summer at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, 1003 N. North St. Over 40 youngsters from 8 to 13 years old are enjoying activities in crafts, recreation and project work.

Cathy White and Jonelle Donohue, program directors, are conducting a program that offers the Day Campers a chance to complete a 4-H project during each 8-day camp. The projects include "Exploring Home Economics", Physical Fitness", Woodworking", "Me, You and Others" and "Bicycle".

With the help of teenage counselors the youngsters are also involved in making crafts provided by the city recreation program and many recreational activities. In addition, each camper receives a morning snack and lunch.

Financial support for the Day Camp Program has come from a variety of local, state and federal sources including the Fayette County Commissioners, Ohio 4-H Foundation, and the Food and Nutrition Service, USDA, OSU Workstudy Program and the Neighborhood Youth Corps.

4-H BEGINNERS CAMP was a lot of fun and learning for 52 Fayette County 4-H'ers at Camp Clifton last week. The 9 and 10-year-olds were involved in many new experiences at camp.

During camp closing ceremonies several campers said that they had learned to swim, to work, to wash dishes, to make new friends and to dance. From the looks of the crafts hall at the end of camp, I'd say that many learned to make and finish milk stools too.

Highlighting the activities were the campfire and recreation programs where the campers put on skits, were part of challenges, relays, circle games and dances as well as singing.

Thanks are due the counselors who did an outstanding job in working with the youngsters in activities and cabins. The Fayette County Counselors were Julie Frost, Paula Welsh, Cathy VanDyke, John Mayer, Patty Smith and Marianne Arnold.

Ohioan among shooting case defendants

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — A federal court jury today was to begin deliberations in the trial of three men charged with obstruction of justice in the shooting of former state Assistant Atty. Gen. Phillip J. Graziani.

Twelve days of testimony ended Tuesday, and defense and government attorneys were to complete their summations today.

Charged in the April 8, 1972 shooting are Claude Weldon Truslow, 29, and Bernard Lee Brumfield, 31, both of Charleston, and George Thomas Davidson Jr., 36, of Lebanon, Ohio. Also accused but to be tried separately is Robert Clements of Charleston.

Graziani was considered a key witness in the government's case against former state Atty. Gen. C. Donald Robertson, Robertson's brother Dana and former state Federal Housing Administration Director James F. Haught. Graziani could not testify because of his wounds.

The Robertsons and Haught are serving prison terms after pleading guilty to charges in connection with a bribery scheme.

Lottery drawing to begin program

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — A lottery drawing Aug. 24 will begin an urban homestead program that offers free homes to people willing to fix them up.

Ten city-owned homes below housing standards will be offered in the first drawing this month. A second group of vacant houses will be offered in the fall, according to a spokesman in the city Housing Department.

Under a plan approved by the City Council last May, a house will be given to a person willing to bring it up to city housing standards within 18 months. The person also must live in the house for at least three years before being granted title to it.

Between 50 and 60 applications have been submitted for the first 10 homes.

Women's equality day proclaimed

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — By a 31-0 vote, the all-male California Senate has adopted a resolution setting Aug. 26 as Women's Recognition and Equality Day in California.

Women won the right to vote in all of the United States on Aug. 26, 1920.

The resolution already has won Assembly approval. Its author is Assemblyman Julian Dixon of Los Angeles.

Homeowner exemption reimbursements issued

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state has sent checks totaling more than $24.4 million to 81 counties to replace taxes lost in granting exemptions to elderly homeowners.

State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson said the largest check, for $6,645,971.91, went to Cuyahoga County.

Under a 1972 law, the counties are permitted to exempt up to 70 per cent of taxable property owner by residents over 65 years old, depending on the residents' income.

Sawyer again heads recreation council

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Parks and Recreation Council has elected Dr. Robert Sawyer of Mansfield to his second term as chairman.

The council named Norma Jacob of Marion as vice chairman during its quarterly meeting.

Reasons for soaring wheat prices noted

WASHINGTON (AP) — High export demand and lowered forecasts on this season's wheat crop size are two main reasons given for soaring wheat prices on the commodities and cash markets.

The supply situation has its origins in the just-concluded wheat marketing year.

Last year, with a bumper crop, exporters sold record amounts — 1.185 billion bushels — after a decade of annual totals in the neighborhood of 750 million bushels. Last year's total included the 440 million bushels sold to Russia.

When the current marketing year started, as a consequence, carryover reserves, at 428 million bushels, were 50 per cent below their level on July 1, 1972, a week before the U.S.-Soviet grain pact was announced.

By July 13 of this year, perhaps 947 million bushels had been committed already for export, shippers said, although the government says a quarter of that may be duplicate reporting. In any case, of the total, 16 per cent had been sold to Russia, 12 per cent to the People's republic of China, 8 per cent to Japan and 11 per cent to the Common Market.

But, as the Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service notes in its latest wheat-situation report, last season's quick turnabouts in world supply and demand really set the stage for what is happening now. It gave this sequence of major events:

—U.S.-Soviet pact for $750 million in grain over three years was announced July 8, 1972. Buying had begun in early July.

—Soviet grain crops continued to deteriorate.

—Soviet buyers returned, placing additional orders for wheat, eventually $1 billion in the first year alone.

—In September, a Chinese grain purchase, the first in many years, was announced, changing the demand picture and fueling speculation.

—India's winter harvest was damaged heavily by monsoons; production dropped sharply. Poor Asian rice crops added to food-supply pressure.

—Australia's crop turned out 25 per cent below expectations.

—A backlog of shipments to Russia built up until a maritime pact was signed, then they clogged the channels, stimulating the bidding up of prices on commodity exchanges.

—Soviet crops got off to a bad winter start, prompting more speculation of another massive purchase.

—Prices eased after "setasides" were suspended for the 1973 crop in a move to add to future supplies.

—Devaluation of the dollar began to have an effect.

—The government had a particularly heavy sale of reserves in March.

—The aura of famine again surfaced. Questions arose about world agriculture's capability to meet the needs.

—Late in the season, foreign buyers bought 750 million bushels of the coming crop, sparking an upturn in prices.

—Speculative buying has apparently been building.

SQUAD LEADERS—Cadet Capt. Roger Allen (left) and Cadet Lt. Col. Paul Woods, Jr., were selected to head the local squadron of the Civil Air Patrol at a Class A encapment being held at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base through Aug. 19. Capt. Allen was named group commander while Lt. Col. Woods was chosen as the deputy commander. The two are in command of some 30 cadets at the 10-day encampment.

Emergency procedures explained to Rotarians

A worthwhile program dealing with emergency medical procedures was presented at the regular meeting of the Washington C.H. Rotary Club Tuesday afternoon in the Country Club.

David Gerstner, a former Washington C.H. resident, now a training officer with the Miami Valley Ambulance Service, Dayton, explained emergency medical procedures above the normal first aid care.

Gerstner also showed a film provided by the American Heart Association which was primarily concerned with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and the techniques in administering the emergency treatment.

The film pointed out the different steps in giving mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and closed with a couple of very dramatic examples such as children choking and adults being stricken with heart attacks.

Following the film, Gerstner pointed out that suffocation is one of the leading causes of death for young children and that over 600,000 adults die each year from heart attacks.

Gerstner stressed that the time element is of the upmost importance since the human brain cannot survive more than three to five minutes without oxygen.

He said the techniques are relatively simple and he is hopeful that more persons will become involved in learning the procedures in case an opportunity ever arose where they had the chance to save someone's live.

Gerstner has conducted a number of classes for firemen, police and sheriff's deputies in the Washington C.H. area dealing with emergency medical procedures and techniques.

The business meeting was conducted by Rotary president Phil Grover, and John Bath was the program chairman. Peter Garr, of the Central Ohio Heart Association, was a guest. Visiting Rotarians were Clark Cory, of Chillicothe, Dr. Walter Felson, of Greenfield, and Art Dick, David Kohli, Lewis Conway, George Gerhardt and Ralph Ritts, all of Mount Sterling.

Pregnancy not valid to deny jobless pay

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—U. S. District Judge Robert Krupansky has ruled that women who have been fired solely because they became pregnant cannot be denied unemployment compensation.

William Papier, director of resarch of the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services, says the Tuesday decision will cost the state at least $300,000 a year.

Unemployment benefits have been denied employes discharged because of pregnancy. Judge Krupansky's order is retroactive to Oct. 22, 1972.

That is the day Edythe Lasko, the Fairview Park woman who challenged the denial, would have been eligible for benefits.

Mrs. Lasko, 24, a secretary-receptionist, was discharged in October about two weeks after she told her supervisor she was four months pregnant.

She filed a class action suit in December against the Bureau of Employment Services on behalf of all women fired because of pregnancy but still able to work. The suit was handled by the Women's Law Fund, which asked for a three-judge panel to declare the pregnancy section of the Unemployment Compensation Act unconstitutional.

U. S. Appellate Judge Paul C. Weick, Senior U. S. District Judge Girard Kalbfleisch and Krupansky decided that the law itself was not unconstitutional but that the state had applied it in an unconstitutional way.

They ruled in an order filed Tuesday that the case for damages would be properly handled by one judge.

An estimated 2,000 taxis serve Ohio.

Opening lead - jack of spades.

Bridge is primarily a game of deduction and, quite often, the opponents' bidding will help declarer make a contract that might otherwise fail.

Here is a spectacular example from the match between the United States and France in the 1969 world championship. The American North-South pair (Bobby Goldman and Billy Eisenberg) got to six diamonds and West led a spade.

Eisenberg won with the ace, played three rounds of trumps, cashed the king of spades, discarding a club, then ruffed a spade and played two more rounds of trumps to produce the following position:

♥Q 8 4 2
♣7

♥J 10 7 5 ♣A — N W E S — ♥9 3 ♣Q 10 8

♥A K 6
♣K 9

West had been forced to discard the jack of clubs on the previous trick in order to keep four hearts, and declarer's sole task at this point was to decide whether West had started with three hearts or four. It was next to certain that West had the ace of clubs to justify his double of one diamond.

Exercising his customary good judgment, Eisenberg concluded that West was far more likely to have four hearts and the lone ace of clubs at this point than three hearts and the ace and another club.

Accordingly, Eisenberg cashed the ace of hearts, continued with a low heart to the queen, and returned a club. When East put up the ten, South backed his judgment by playing the nine on it and in that way brought home the vulnerable small slam.

Bright yellow jet features organic food and rock music

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The airline's flying stock is painted bright yellow, features rock music, organic food, chess and checkers and a format that might allow passengers to play "destination bingo" on some flights.

"Freelandia," a one-plane airline that won its license last week from the Federal Aviation Administration, will operate its elderly DC8 on a travel-club route between Hawaii, the mainland and Europe.

The counter-culture's answer to the regularly scheduled airlines, Freelandia is the brainchild of former Wall Steet whiz Kenneth Moss. Moss, 30, made $1 million playing the stock market by the time he was 26 and dropped out a year later to become a wealthy vagabond.

"It's a travel club you need $50 to join; and if you have it, we can squeeze you in. There's always one more seat," said Moss.

Members who pay the initiation fee will be able to fly from Honolulu to San Francisco for $69, from San Francisco to Los Angeles for $12.50, from Los Angeles to New York for $69 and from New York to Brussels for $100, Moss said.

The first flight of Freelandia will take off from Hawaii "no later than Sept. 21, and earlier if we reach our minimum membership level of 3,000 before that," Moss said.

"It's going to be an alternative style of travel; we've even toyed with the idea of taking off from Hawaii and having something like a bingo game to decide where we should go on the fuel we had."

"The airlines are trapped into a cost cycle, but we don't have the overhead, the computers, or big brother watching us to see that we make that profit," Moss said, adding any money made above cost would be given to various charities.

Misuse of state seal claimed by Hughes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Rep. Rodney Hughes, R-78 Bellefontaine, has offered a resolution in the Ohio House that would reprimand the state Department of Public Works for alleged misuse of the Great Seal of Ohio.

Hughes, a critic of the department's operations, complained Tuesday the agency replaced the mountains, wheat field and stream with children holding hands.

Snakenaper surrenders

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A prized albino snake has been returned to the Cleveland Zoo by a teenage boy who was accompanied to the zoo by his father.

Charles R. Voracek, public service director for the zoo, said Tuesday that the albino and a corn snake, which also was taken from the zoo on Sunday, were in fine condition. He said no charges were contemplated against the boy.

Voracek said the father called him after recognizing the albino snake in his son's collection Monday. The white, cream and beige snake with a pink tongue and pink eyes was recognized by the father, who had read about the theft in a newspaper.

Voracek said the boy has collected snakes for several years and that he took good care of the two taken from the zoo.

Both snakes were taken Sunday at the close of the zoo's third annual reptile fair where amateurs put their exhibits on display next to the zoo's reptiles.

Hospitals feel meat shortage

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Beef shortages and higher prices for pork have caused several Cincinnati area hospitals to reduce menu selections.

St. Francis Hospital, run by the Franciscan Sisters of the Poor, will discontinue serving cafeteria meals on Sundays, except for short orders.

At St. Luke's Hospital in Fort Thomas, Ky., bacon has been eliminated from the breakfast menu.

"Our prices have gone up on some items double," said Mrs. Betty Estes, assistant director.

Ann Eberly, food director at St. Francis, said nothing will be changed on patients' menus. But she hopes employes will "brown bag it," bringing their own lunches.

For the past two weeks, employe menus at Bethesda and Bethesda-North hospitals have been without any meat. They have also stopped serving meals to visitors, said food director Thomas Dowling.

Brown wants another term

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Secretary of State Ted W. Brown, saying his support was "solid," indicated Tuesday he will announce his candidacy for reelection in 1974 later this year.

Brown, a Republican and the state's election chief for 23 years, said he has substantial support from Democrats. He attributed the support to Democratic Gov. John J. Gilligan's "so-called election reform program."

Brown said, "The governor's program is too radical, and many Democrats, who support the more moderate program for progressive election change that I have sponsored, resent Gilligan's tactics in obstructing important election legislation for purely partisan reasons."

Brown's decision to run again came as no surprise to Statehouse observers.

CURLED — Pittsburgh Pirate pitcher Dock Ellis says he believes an order from Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn prompted manager Bill Virdon to tell him to stop wearing hair curlers in pre-game practice, but Kuhn denies he had anything to do with it.

Intensity continues between Reds, Bucs

PITTSBURGH (AP) — There's a special intensity to games between the Cincinnati Reds and Pittsburgh Pirates, playoff foes in two of the past three seasons.

"They respect us and we respect them, and it figures there'll be tight games when we get together," Johnny Bench said Tuesday night after his three hits helped the Reds edge Pittsburgh 5-4.

"It seems like we've had so many one-run games," echoed Tony Perez, who drove in two Cincinnati runs with a single and his 21st home run of the season.

"I would like to win big," the native Cuban added with a broad grin, "but I guess the close games are better for you. They make you play better."

The Reds scored two runs in the first on five consecutive singles off Pirate starter Jim Rooker. But Rooker settled and held the Reds hitless until Perez belted a solo homer in the sixth inning.

"Rooker hung in there. He pitched good ball tonight," said Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson, whose club posted its seventh win in nine games.

The Pirates tagged Reds' starter Ross Grimsley for a run in the second on Richie Zisk's bloop double and a single by Manny Sanguillen.

Then Pittsburgh pulled to a 3-3 tie in the seventh by scoring two runs with the help of a pinch-single by Richie Hebner, who had been benched since his angry verbal battle last weekend with Pirate Manager Bill Virdon.

The Pirates opened the seventh by putting runners at second and third on two singles and a sacrifice bunt.

Manny Sanguillen came home when the first pitch from reliever Clay Carroll got away from catcher Bill Plummer. Then Hebner stroked a single to right to score Dave Cash with the tying run.

But the Reds won the game with a two-run spurt in the ninth that began when Bench doubled to left and took third when the ball skipped past outfielder Willie Stargell for an error.

Cesar Geronimo, running for Bench, scored the first run in the ninth on a single by Andy Kosco. Pete Rose later singled off Pirate reliever Ramon Hernandez to score Kosco with what proved to be the winning run.

"Hernandex is a heck of a pitcher," said Rose, who extended his hitting streak to 16 games with a first-inning single.

"He made a good pitch, down and away," Rose added, "but I went with it.

"I like to get a chance at another time at bat," Rose continued, "because I'm confident I'll come through."

The Pirates rallied in the ninth but fell short.

After singles by Rennie Stennett and Dal Maxvill, relief pitcher Tom Hall struck out Gene Alley. Gene Clines hit a grounder to Darrell Chaney for a forceout at second, but Joe Morgan's relay to first was wild and Stennett scored.

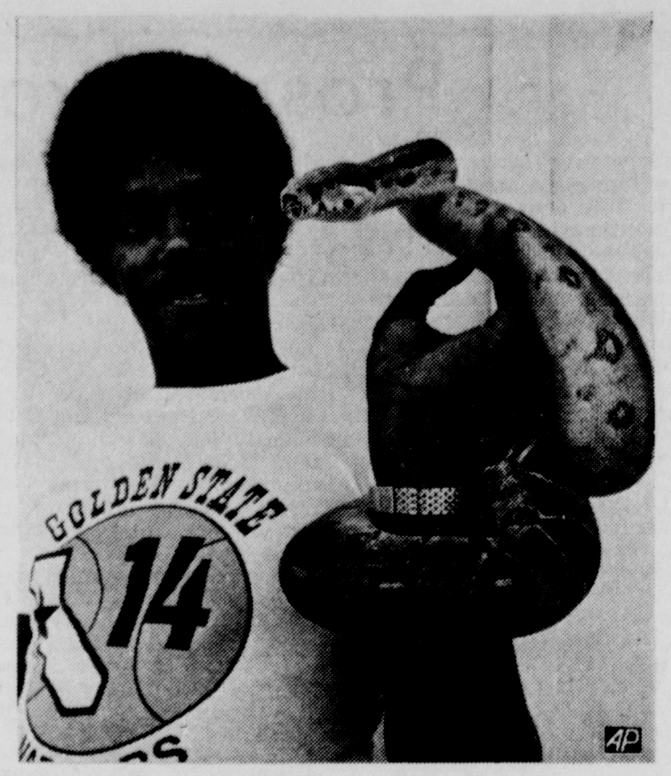

But Hall got Pirate pinchitter Milt May to ground out to Perez at first to end the game.

Carbon copy of 1972 season?

Weather no obstacle for county gridders

Things have picked up right where they left off a year ago as far as weather conditions are concerned for Fayette County's high school football teams.

Rain hampered the county gridders on six of the 10 playing dates last fall and it appears that showers are going to be a nuisance this summer as it has rained during each of the practice sessions for Washington C.H. and Miami Trace since high school football drills officially opened Monday.

ALTHOUGH IT would seem that the rain would prove bothersome, the coaching staffs sometimes greet the wet weather as it provides a chance for their charges to handle wet footballs in addition to practicing footing on the soggy turf.

The prospective candidates at both Washington C.H. and Miami Trace practiced through Tuesday's early morning showers, placing heavy emphasis again on physical conditioning.

The Ohio High School Athletic Association requires four days of summer physical conditioning before full-scale contact. Both teams will don pads on Thursday and begin contact at Friday's practice sessions.

At the Washington C.H. camp, four more of veteran head coach Maurice Pfeifer's prospective candidates completed the Blue Lions' mandatory six-minute mile, leaving only nine players to reach that requirement before summer practice ends. On the opening day of practice, 34 of the 48 Blue Lion players completed the running requirement.

Pfeifer blended offensive drills with the physical conditioning at Tuesday's practices. The veteran Blue Lion mentor installed one new running play and a new passing play as well as placing heavy emphasis on the kicking game.

Mistakes plagued Miami Trace's practice sessions as the players were acquainting themselves with a brand new offense while making defensive adjustments.

But, new head coach Fred Zechman commented that "we expect these mistakes at this early stage of practice." The Panthers lost 14 seniors through graduation and more than half of the candidates at the Miami Trace camp are sophomores.

ZECHMAN PRAISED the performances of juniors Jeff Smithson and Steve Southworth in the defensive secondary along with seniors Doug Baker and Dusty Ruth. Zechman is especially pleased with Baker's performance. The fleet halfback was sidelined with an injury as a sophomore and did not play his junior year.

The Panther coaching staff worked on the running game Tuesday, installing a "belly series" and held skull sessions with the defensive players.

Zechman also singled out the performance of junior Tom Riley at the quarterback position. Riley has been "working real hard" at the quarterback spot, according to the new Panther boss.

The two county teams have over a week and a half to practice before plunging into their first interscholastic scrimmages of the summer. Washington C.H. will travel to Kettering Fairmont West while Miami Trace will play Unioto Saturday, Aug. 25.

Jr. hi grid call issued

A meeting will be held for all Washington C.H. junior high and freshman football candidates at 2:30 p.m. Friday at Washington Senior High School.

Coach Rodger Mickle said all seventh, eighth and ninth graders interested in football should attend the meeting.

Slumping Cubs lose despite Fergy fury

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Guinness, stop your presses. A couple of world's records were set Tuesday in Chicago.

In the category of most bats thrown by a right-handed pitcher leaving the game, the record is now four.

And for the category of most bats landing between the mound and home, thrown by a right-handed pitcher, the record is also four.

Ferguson Jenkins, the owner of these two marks, was noticeably touched by the world records. "I don't have anything to say. You don't mind, do you?"

A three-run Atlanta fifth sent him to the showers with his 12th defeat in 22 decisions. As Jenkins, loser in six of his last seven starts, ambled off the mound the Chicago fans let him know they had had enough.

They booed.

Jenkins indicated he, too, had had enough.

He threw bats. Four of them, all sailing harmlessly between the mound and home plate.

But Jenkins' heaves had no effect on the baseball game's final score: Atlanta 6, Chicago 2—the ninth straight loss for the staggering Cubs.

In the other National League action, Cincinnati squeaked by Pittsburgh 5-4, St. Louis pounded Houston 9-5, San Diego blanked New York 9-0, Philadelphia edged San Francisco 4-3 and Los Angeles overcame Montreal 4-3.

Reds 5, Pirates 4

About the only difference between the Reds and the Pirates is a run here and a run there. The Pirates had that extra run Monday night while the Reds had it Tuesday night, taking the game 5-4.

Andy Kosco's ninth-inning single scored pinch-runner Cesar Geronimo with the tiebreaking run and the Reds held on despite the Pirates' ninth-inning rally.

Cards 9, Astros 5

The Cardinals were down 5-0 and apparently headed for their ninth straight loss when they rallied for five runs in the sixth and four more in the seventh and all of a sudden they had a one-game winning streak after dropping eight in a row.

Dodgers 4, Expos 3

Pinch hitter Ken McMullen ripped a two-out, two-run homer in the ninth inning to dramatically lift the Dodgers over Montreal 4-3.

Bill Russell's two-out single had kept the Dodgers' hopes alive and then McMullen slugged his fourth homer of the year to win it.

Padres 9, Mets 0

Rookie Dave Winfield drove in four runs and rookie lefthander Randy Jones pitched an eight-hitter, pacing the Padres to a 9-0 blanking of the Mets for their third straight victory.

Phils 4, Giants 3

Greg Luzinski belted his 20th and 21st homers of the year while Jim Lonborg's spaced 11 hits in Philadelphia's 4-3 victory over San Francisco.

Gloster Richardson faces police charges

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Browns owner Art Modell said he will not comment on the drug and traffic charges filed against Browns wide receiver Gloster Richardson.

"I have to wait until all the facts are revealed," Modell said Tuesday.

Richardson has been charged with possession of marijuana, driving without a license, driving while intoxicated and leaving the scene of an accident.

Scioto Scarlet-Gray series draws tightly-matched field

COLUMBUS — An even dozen outstanding sophomore pacers have been entered in the $12,000 Scarlet and Gray Cup Series Thursday night at Scioto Downs.

The field is so closely matched that no less than four of the entrants have been tagged as the early pre-race choices.

The Joe O'Brien stable entry of Steady Airliner and Tassel's Knot will battle with Faraway Bay, Dick Burton's rapidly improving pacing sensation, and Honey Cane, Delaware's hope in the Little Brown Jug.

STEADY AIRLINER is the key figure in the O'Brien stable entry. Owned by John Colvin, of Dayton, Tenn., Steady Airliner capped a brilliant two-year-old season with a successful time trail effort of 1:58.2 at Lexington, Ky. This season, the sturdy son of Steady Beau, has posted three victories including a 1:59 dazzler at Scioto Downs.

Faraway Bay, owned by Art Meyring, of Dayton, took his two-year-old mark of 1:57.4 in a heat of the Fox Stakes at Indianapolis, defeating the highly-regarded Ricci Reenie Time. The son of Race Time was brought around slowly by Buxton this year after suffering smoke inhalation in a barn fire at the Champaign County Fairgrounds at Urbana. He climaxed a series of starts at Scioto Downs with an easy wire-to-wire jaunting 2:00.3.

On Aug. 4, Honey Cane zoomed into national prominence with a dramatic comeback victory in 2:00.3. with 18-year-old Billy Williams in the sulky at Scioto Downs. Since that time, the colt has posted seven straight wins.

Because of multiple ownership in two different horses from the George Sholty stable and the Gene Riegle stable, both stables must go as a Sholty-Riegle stable entry in the wagering Thursday.

Charter Captain, the swift son of Meadow Skipper racing out of the Sholty stable, and Jessee Hanover from the Riegle stable, are both owned by Dr. Paul Soldner, of Springfield, and Dale and Floyd Miller, of Archbold.

Charter Captain has been improving each week with Bill Herman driving. The speedy sophomore took his mark of 2:02.2 at Vernon Downs a few weeks ago. Jessee Hanover is well-known to Scioto Downs fans after pacing in 2:00 for Alan Riegle in early June.

The second half of the Sholty stable entry is Billy Joe Byrd, owned by Bill Sherman, of Dayton. The second colt in Riegle stable is Our Bret.

ONE OF the outstanding three-year-olds that can't be overlooked is Arapaho from the Howard Beissinger stable. Bill Henman has Hasty Retreat and Charlie Greene has Cita Square and Archie McNeil has Osborne Creed to complete the Scarlet and Gray Cup field.

Of the 12 Scarlet and Gray Cup starters that are also eligible for the Little Brown Jug are Billy Joe Byrd, Charter Captain, Jessee Hanover, Our Bret, Steady Airliner, Faraway Bay and Honey Cane. This group plus Osborne Creed are also eligible to the $25,000 Jug Preview at Scioto Downs Sept. 6.

Unitas seeks $750,000

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Colts have stripped Johnny Unitas of his player's uniform, but they may have a more difficult time throwing off his court suit.

The 40-year-old quarterback, benched last October and then traded to San Diego after the 1972 season, has sued the National Football League club for $725,000 on charges of malicious breach of contract.

The suit, filed Tuesday in Baltimore Superior Court, involves both compensating and punitive damages. Lewis A. Noonberg, one of Unitas' attorneys, said there was no attempt to have NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle arbitrate.

According to the suit, Colts' General Manager Joe Thomas had made it impossible for Unitas to carry out a contract signed in 1970 with Carroll Rosenbloom, former owner of the Baltimore franchise.

Thomas, who joined the Colts when Robert Irsay became the owner in July, 1972, declined comment on the suit, saying the matter was in the hands of the club's attorneys.

Forgotten Concannon finally gets chance

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Veteran Jack Concannon, the forgotten man of the Dallas Cowboys quarterback corps, will finally get a chance to show his stuff.

After spending all of last season watching Roger Staubach and Craig Morton spark the Cowboy attack, Concannon will own the spotlight for National Football League club's preseason game against the New Orleans Saints Saturday night.

For the first quarter, anyway.

"Concannon will open and go for a quarter," Dallas coach Tom Landry said Tuesday. "We'll play all three quarterbacks."

And, despite the fact that Staubach and Morton have a decided edge on Concannon for the No. 1 spot on the Cowboy staff, Concannon's performance might change things around. Coach Landry hasn't made his final decision yet.

"I hope we can decide by the start of the season," Landry said, adding importance to Concannon's performance Saturday night.

The Miami Dolphins, meanwhile, are set at quarterback but unsure of a number of other players as they prepare for their meeting with the Chicago Bears. Offensive tackle Doug Crusan sprained both knees and one ankle, while linemate Norm Evans suffered a shoulder injury in last week's victory over the New Orleans Saints. Another question mark as the Dolphins try for their 22nd consecutive victory is running back Larry Csonka, who has a bruised leg muscle.

The Cleveland Browns practiced without five starters out with minor injuries incurred in last week's exhibition game against Los Angeles. Defensive tackle Walter Johnson, wide receiver Frank Pitts, running backs Bo Scott and Ken Brown and center Bob DeMarco were out of action.

The Denver Broncos obtained veteran linebacker Bill Laskey from the Baltimore Colts for an undisclosed draft choice, then placed defensive backs Steve Preece and Bill West on waivers.

New England also released two players, placing linebacker Henry Moore and quarterback Dan Werner on waivers.

Paul Brown of the Cincinnati Bengals announced the acquisition of a free agent, safety Rick Seifert, a rookie from Ohio State who had been dropped recently by the New York Jets.

Anti-theft devices said not helpful

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston detective says anti-theft devices on new cars help very little in preventing a car from being stolen.

"The professionals always seem to find the ways and means to take cars they want," burglary and theft Det. J.D. Hunt says.

Late model cars have been rolling off the assembly lines equipped with what manufacturers call improved ignition safety systems and other items such as locking steering wheel mechanisms. Burglary alarms on a few makes of cars were offered as optional equipment.

"A big screw driver is usually all it takes to break the steering wheel locks," Hunt says. "And thieves have even used wrenches to haul away some cars."

Hunt says the last real improvement on cars came a few years ago when one manufacturer stopped making ignitions where the car could be started without the key — in the "off" instead of "lock" position.

"That was changed and it probably had some effect on the 'joy riding' thieves," Hunt says.

At present, more than 60 per cent of the Newfoundland government's revenues come from the Canadian federal government.

Measles vaccinations planned in Vienna

VIENNA (AP) — The Vienna Health Department will start a vaccination program against German measles during the next school term that will extend to all 13-year-old girls in the Austrian capital. It is hoped this will prevent birth defects caused by the mother's infection with the disease during pregnancy.

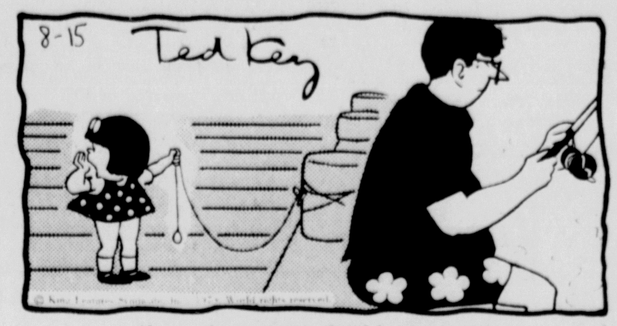

As a matter of course, all new mothers in Vienna are inoculated against the virus.

Since last March, all new school teachers have been undergoing examinations to determine their resistance to rubella.

County man injured; sports car damaged

A Fayette County man was injured late Tuesday night when his sports car crashed into a fence and tree on Flakes Ford Road, a mile west of Locust Grove Road, the Sheriff's department reported.

Released following treatment in Memorial Hospital was the driver of the car, John J. Grdina, III, 42, of 2170 Dorthea Dr. He sustained a broken nose and multiple lacerations.

Investigating officers said Grdina was eastbound when he apparently steered to the right on a sharp curve to avoid an oncoming car. His sports car ran onto the berm and went out of control into the fence and tree.

The 1971 model car was heavily damaged. Grdina was not cited in the 10:40 p.m. mishap.

Police cited Alva McDaniel, 64, of Minford, for failure to yield the right of way following a collision at the intersection of Washington Avenue and Court Street at 12:06 p.m.

Officers reported McDaniel pulled from the stop sign on Washington Avenue into the path of an eastbound car driven by Mark L. Ruley, 19, of 1025 Lakeview Ave.

There was moderate damage to both cars.

A car driven by Judith A. Leeth, 27, Hillsboro, and a semi-rig driven by Leonard H. Gabbart, 41, Orient, were involved in a minor mishap on the Marathon lot at Court and North Streets at 1:53 p.m. Only slight damage was reported.

A pickup truck driven by Glenn L. Jacobson, 27, Rt. 3, and a car driven by Ralph W. Thomas, 17, Rt. 1, Bloomingburg, collided on the Miami Trace High School lot. There was minor damage.

Flood recovery money

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The U.S. Disaster Assistance Administration has provided $34,518 to help residents of Lake, Lucas and Ashtabula Counties recover from floods.

BIKE RIDE WINNERS—Winners of the Alpha Theta Chapter's charity bicycle ride were awarded prizes for their efforst Monday at the Courthouse. Paul Febo, left, won a portable television set for the most funds raised, David Laytart, center, was the fastest rider, and Debbie Cremeans was second in the amount of money raised.

Exposure incident, theft investigated

An indecent exposure incident Tuesday afternoon involving two Washington C.H. girls was investigated by city police.

Officers said the two girls, ages 9 and 12, reported they were walking on East Street when a man standing in an alley between North and Sycamore Streets exposed himself. The two said they had noticed the man earlier on Short Street.

Shirley Bass, of 907 John St., reported that $14 in food stamps had been removed from her purse sometime Tuesday afternoon. She said the stamps were apparently taken by a friend visiting her home. No charge was filed.

Lester D. Coil, Rt. 1, Bloomingburg, reported to sheriff's deputies that a nameplate has been removed from his mailbox. The incident occurred sometime after Friday he said. Damage was set at $10.

State distributes Homestead monies

Fayette County received $47,182.06 in the state's first reimbursement for granting homestead exemptions to elderly landowners. The county received an additional $943.64 to cover administrative costs.

Homeowners aged 65 years or more with incomes of less than $8,000 per year are eligible for the exemption under a law passed by the General Assembly in 1972.

The state Auditor's office distributed $24,016,588.93 to 81 of Ohio's counties as reimbursement for homestead exemptions. Seven counties have not yet certified their exemptions to the Auditor.

Lookout House falls in flames

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — A burned out shell and a smoky haze are all that if left today of the Lookout House, which catered Cincinnati area residents' tastes from bootleg whisky and gambling to plush entertainment for three decades.

The Kentucky Fire Marshal's office has been asked to investigate the $2.5 million blaze. The cause was not determined.

Firemen in suburban Fort Wright continued to pour water on burning embers today after four area departments fought the blaze unsuccessfully.

Only one fireman was injured slightly. All equipment was moved across the Dixie Highway before the massive threestory front wall collapsed into the street.

The entertainment palace was undergoing renovation by its new owners, Ohio Real Estate Investment Corp.

They planned to reopen it in September as a plush restaurant that catered to parties. Plush entertainment was to be abolished.

The Lookout House, since 1962, was the flagship of "Gormet Strip" on the Dixie Highway just south of Covington. One by one, the restaurants closed as Cincinnatians began buying liquor on Sunday in their own state.

The nearby White Horse Tavern burned to the ground Feb. 17, 1972 at a loss of $300,000. The cause was never determined.

The Lookout House determined its name from its location, first owned by a German locksmith in 1886 who built the first part of the building. It was considered the highest point in Kenton County.

The Lookout House opened as a big time gambling house in 1933 owned by the late James H. Brink, who later told the Kefauver Crime Investigating Committee he earned the money for it "with a little bootlegging."

Brink, reputed gambling boss of Northern Kentucky in the 1930s, 1940s and 1950s, was killed mysteriously in 1952. His private plane blew up over an airport near Atlanta, Ga. Police found $24,000 in cash in bundles of $100 bills in the plane.

County receives 'rollback' funds

Fayette County was reimbursed $113,303.76 in property tax rollback funds based on the last half of 1971, according to the state Auditor's office.

The 10 per cent property tax rollback was authorized by the General Assembly last year.

The total reimbursement for the state's 88 counties amounted to $61,272,418.94. The Auditor's office is in the process of making reimbursements for rollbacks on property taxes for the first half of 1972.

Redman earnings up

Redman Industries, Inc., Dallas, Tex., parent company of Redman Mobile Homes, Inc., reported that its July revenues were up by 11 per cent over those of July, 1972.

Revenues for the month totaled $27,682,000, compared to $24,999,000 in July, 1972.

There was an 18 per cent increase in the revenues of Redman Mobile Homes, Inc., which leased a plant in Arkansas during July and is opening three new plants in August.

Nixon's Watergate speech set tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon takes his defense in the Watergate case to the American people tonight with a television address about the scandal that has marred his presidency.

The chief executive worked at his Camp David retreat today on the final version of the 9 p.m. EDT speech and on a more detailed written statement to be released at the same time.

The half-hour address from the Oval Office will be carried live by all national radio and television networks.

The speech and statement comprise Nixon's first comprehensive response since May 22 to the stream of allegations flowing from what ranks as one of the greatest political scandals in the nation's history.

Confronted by opinion polls showing public confidence in his administration and him personally at all time lows, the President will seek in the television address to rally public support for his second term foreign and domestic goals.

White House officials, who contend the American people are "ready to turn the corner" on Watergate, said tonight's response will be followed in the days ahead by other public speeches and news conferences.

The first will come on Monday in New Orleans, where the President is to address the Veterans of Foreign Wars national convention. Next will come a news conference in California, where Nixon is to spend the last two weeks of the month.

While most of his aides declined to discuss specifics of tonight's speech, they indicated the President would deny advance knowledge of the bugging of Democratic National Headquarters and of the subsequent cover-up, while candidly conceding he should have paid more heed to allegations that White House and re-election committee officials were involved.

The President reportedly was ready to place a large share of the blame on fired White House counsel John W. Dean III. Until the early months of this year, Nixon sought to cope with the spreading allegations of scandal by citing an investigation he said Dean conducted showing no White House involvement.

Dean, who said he never made the investigation Nixon cited, was a principal witness in the televised Senate Watergate committee hearings.

In addition to the bugging and cover-up, Nixon is reported ready to respond to other spinoff questions—such as the burglary of Pentagon papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office.

But aides indicated the bulk of the televised address will be devoted to an effort to rekindle public confidence in the President and his administration.

Warplanes leave Cambodia

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Two U.S. Air Force F111s, glinting silver in the bright sunlight, roared low over Phnom Penh at 10.45 a.m. today to signal the end of the American bombing of Cambodia.

The two swept-wing jets, on their way back to their bases in Thailand, were followed by an OV10 forward air control plane blowing a trail of blue and white smoke as a last gesture of farewell to nine years of American air attacks in Indochina.

The OV10 did a slow barrel roll, and the bombing halt was in effect 15 minutes before the deadline set by the U. S. Congress.

Crowds in the streets paused briefly to watch the planes, but the bustle of the Cambodian capital quickly returned to normal. The people appeared unperturbed by the historic moment and the increased prospect that their city would fall to the estimated 30,000 Communist-led insurgents of the Khmer Rouge around it.

Northwest of Phnom Penh at the village of Kap Srov, Capt. Eng Taung Hak watched one of the last American air strikes against an insurgent position a mile away. As the planes flew off, he shrugged and said: "Finis bombardement."

The last group of three B52s dropped their 48 tons of bombs just before dawn. The last American bombs dropped on Cambodia were credited to Maj. John Hoskins, 37, of Portsmouth, Ohio, flying an A7 fighter-bomber. He said he dropped his load at 10:44 a.m. in a wooded area 40 miles northeast of Phnom Penh.

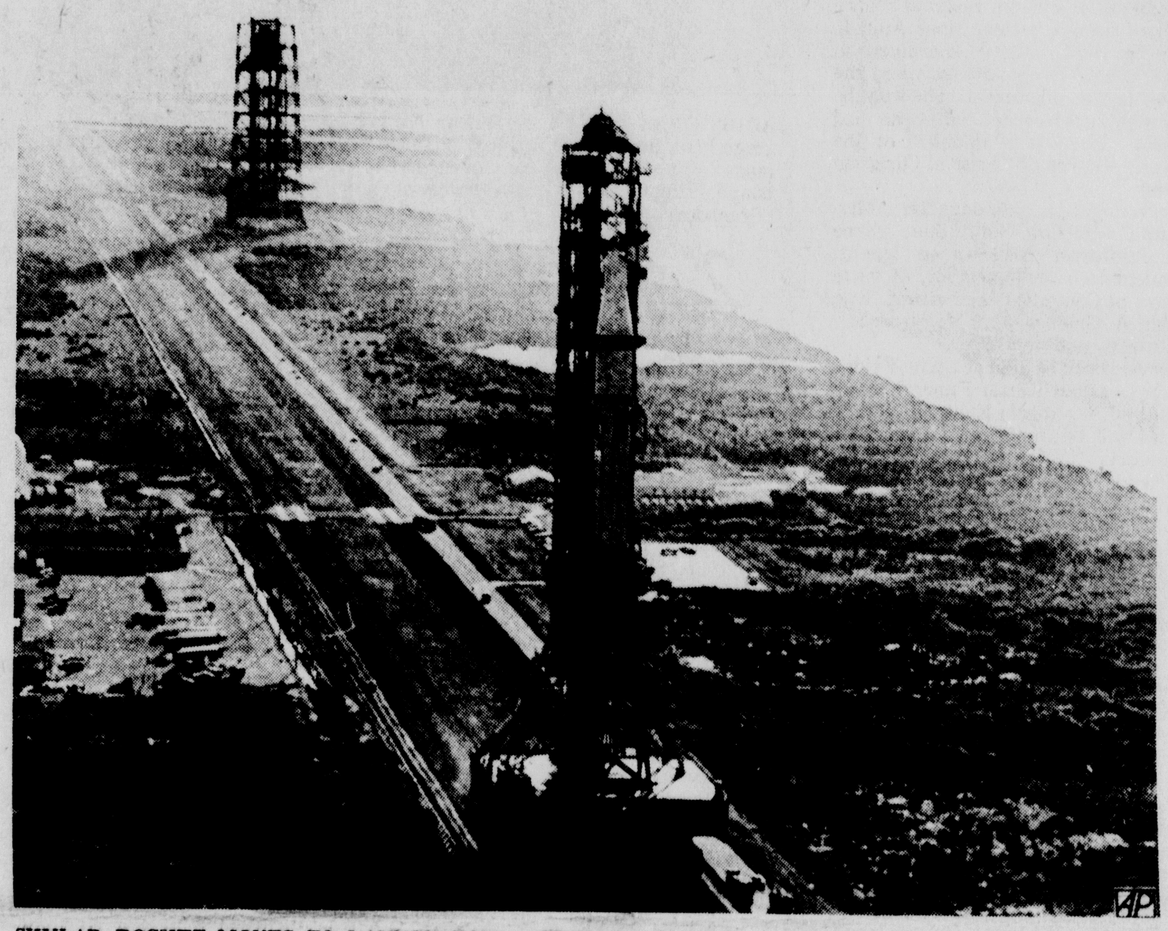

The Pentagon indicated more than 200 strikes — the usual daily average in recent weeks — were flown in the last 24 hours of the air war.

American pilots at their bases in Thailand telephoned their wives back home but held no special celebrations. The Pentagon said earlier that most combat crews and planes would remain in Southeast Asia for a time, and the White House said again that the Nixon administration would do "everything within the law" to support the government of Cambodia. Pentagon sources said U. S. reconnaissance and cargo flights in Cambodia would continue.

The bombing halt which the U. S. Congress forced President Nixon to accept ended the longest aerial campaign in the history of warfare. The 7.4 million tons of bombs and other explosives dropped on North and South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia was three times the amount U. S. planes dropped in World War II and 10 times the amount in the Korean War.

The end of the bombing removed a protective shield that slowed but did not stop the advance on Phnom Penh of the Khmer Rouge, who control two thirds of Cambodia. There was no indication yet whether the insurgents would make an allout drive to take the city.

Col. Am Rong, the chief spokesman for the Cambodian military command, expressed confidence that the army could defend Phnom Penh without the support of the U.S. bombing. But his confidence was not shared by foreign observers in the city.

Many scandal questions remain

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly three months ago President Nixon pledged "to set forth the facts" about the Watergate scandal as additional questions were raised.

Since that May 22 statement, in the early days of Senate hearings, questions have piled up with numbing rapidity. Tonight the President makes his latest public statement—the eighth in a series that began at a news conference Aug. 29, 1972, when Watergate was two months old.

He said then that John W. Dean III, the White House counsel, had conducted a complete investigation and added this this oft-quoted statement:

"I can say categorically that his investigation indicates no one in the White House staff, no one in this administration presently employed, was involved in this very bizarre incident."

As an early star witness in the Senate Watergate hearings, now in recess, Dean said he hadn't made any investigation. "I would have been the last to say unequivocally, as the President so stated, that no one presently employed at the White House had any advance knowledge of the matter," he testified.

As one indication of the slow speed at which the Watergate issue took hold, Nixon had held two other news conferences between the June 17 break-in at Democratic party headquarters and his statement of Aug. 29. At neither was he asked about Watergate.

The question arose, however, Oct. 5, 1972, when a reporter asked whether the administration and the public would be served "if you people would come through and make a clean breast about what you were trying to get done at the Watergate?"

The President noted the investigation conducted by the FBI involved 133 agents, 1,800 leads and 1,500 interviews and said he agreed with the effort because "I wanted to make sure that no member of the White House staff and no man or woman in a position of major responsibility in the Committee for the Re-election had anything to do with this kind of reprehensible activity."

Nixon's next statement on Watergate, at a news conference March 2, spoke again of Dean's investigation and noninvolvement of White House personnel at the time of Watergate. He promised cooperation with the Senate committee, then gearing up, but said "no president could ever agree to allow the counsel to the president (Dean) to go down and testify before a committee."

By mid-March, L. Patrick Gray III was deeply involved in confirmation hearings to be permanent FBI director, and the Senate asked that Dean testify. On March 12, Nixon issued guidelines on executive privilege and two days later Dean wrote the committee declining to appear under those guidelines.

Nixon led off his March 15 news conference by announcing the opening of a U.S. liaison office in Peking, but the first question concerned his refusal to let Dean testify. Nixon reportedly was disturbed that his Peking announcement was relegated to a secondary role.

Grants awarded for expansion of fluoridation

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Grants totaling $57,471 have been awarded to the Ohio Department of Health to implement a program to provide water fluoridation equipment to Appalachian communities, it was announced today.

Dr. John W. Cashman, director of the health department, said the goal is to provide the necessary equipment to provide fluoride for 29 water supplies, serving 100,000 persons.

The purpose is to attack the problem of dental decay among children in Appalachian Ohio.

He said a survey showed 87 per cent of the second graders in the region had dental problems, compared with 41 per cent in cities with fluoridated water supplies.

Beef ceiling skirmish due

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Another skirmish in the battle of the beef ceiling was due today as a federal judge in Philadelphia promised a ruling on the latest of a series of suits to end the freeze. The score so far: Government 3, Meat Industry 0.

The latest suit, pending before U.S. District Court Judge Louis Bechtle, was brought by Salsburg's Meats of Shillington, Pa.

Harvan Nathan, president of the discount store operation, asked the judge to declare the freeze on beef unconstitutional as a "deprivation of property without due process of law."

Nathan, who said his firm does an annual business of $1.5 million, said he had lost more than $21,000 since July 1. "We are buying live cattle on the open market at prices well in excess of the allowable retail price for meat," he said.

Similar pleas for injunctions against enforcement of the ceiling have been rejected by federal judges in San Francisco, Seattle, Wash., and Lincoln, Neb.

Wholesale and retail beef prices remain under a ceiling until Sept, 12. Other foods were freed from most controls on July 18 and the freeze on prices of nonfood items began to thaw Monday when Phase Four took effect.

The governors of Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Idaho and New Mexico asked President Nixon on Tuesday to lift the beef ceiling.

They said prices of poultry, pork and lamb are rising at an excessive rate as a result of a beef shortage and added: "Present distortions in this region include severe reduction in activity in cattle raising and feed lot operations and the shutdown or reduction in the number of processing and packing plants..." Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz says there is no real danger of a food shortage. He told a news conference in Madison, Wis., on Tuesday that "we always have a year's reserve of beef on the hoof in this country." He also said that Americans consume only a fraction of the corn, soybeans and wheat the nation produces.

No matter what the reason, there was no beef on the counter in many areas.

The beef section of the meat counter at an A&P supermarket in New Orleans used to stretch for 25 feet. On Tuesday, it was only about five feet long. Filling up the rest of the space were cheeses, pickles, seafood and salads.

Wheat prices rose again on U.S. markets Tuesday, spurred by worldwide demands and reports that crops would not be as large as predicted. Robert M. Green, secretary of the National Macaroni Manufacturers Association, said wheat sales to foreign countries could drive the price of macaroni to 50 cents a pound or more. The price now is between 35 and 39 cents a pound, he said.

Wheat futures — contracts sold for delivery at a later date — topped $5 a bushel on the Minneapolis Grain Exchange on Tuesday for the first time in history.

Prices for iced broiler chickens were sharply lower, however. Analysts said consumer resistance to high prices — 90 cents a pound in some areas — were responsible for an accumulation of supplies and a decrease of demand.

Agnew offers prosecutors access to personal records

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saying "I have nothing to hide," Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has offered federal prosecutors access to his personal records in a probe of kickbacks and political corruption in Maryland.

Agnew carefully made a distinction between his personal papers and the official records of the vice president, apparently to avoid comparisons between his decision and President Nixon's refusal to turn over White House documents to prosecutors in the Watergate affair.

"You understand that, by making these records available to you, I do not acknowledge that you or any grand jury have any right to records of the vice president," Agnew said in a letter Tuesday to U.S. Atty. George Beall in Baltimore.

"Nor do I acknowledge the propriety of any grand jury investigation of possible wrongdoing on the part of the vice president so long as he occupies that office. These are difficult constitutional questions which need not at this moment be confronted."

Agnew also said he would be happy to meet with the prosecutors to answer any questions. His records, while they would be made available for inspection, were not to be removed from his office, he said.

The vice president said his staff has been instructed to give Beall and his assistants the fullest cooperation and, if necessary, to make copies of any of the records. He said these copies can be compared with the originals to verify their accuracy.

There was no indication when agents from Beall's office would arrive to examine the records.

Beall asked Agnew last week to voluntarily turn over his financial and tax records dating back to 1967 for examination in connection with a federal grand jury investigation of possible violations of tax, bribery, extortion and conspiracy laws.

Testimony related to Agnew in the investigation is expected to be presented to the grand jury later this week or early next week.

See road work delay

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's transportation director said today several major highway construction projects may be delayed from six months to a year because of recent court action requiring additional environmental considerations.

Solons applaud bombing halt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators who were active in demanding an end to the U.S. combat role in Indochina expressed relief today that the American bombing of Cambodia has ended.

"The country can thank God that another phase of American involvement in the Indochina war has ended, hopefully the last," said Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa.

Hughes said he hopes legislation passed by Congress to force an end of the Cambodia bombing as of midnight Tuesday will be obeyed.

But he said "Congress and particularly the Armed Services committees will be alert to investigate the slightest hint of violations."

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., sponsor of the amendment that led to the bombing halt and an end to all other U.S. combat activities in Indochina, said he is confident it will be adhered to by the administration.

Eagleton said he does not believe there is any way the heavy bombing that has been carried on around Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital, could be continued secretly.

Rep. Joseph P. Addabbo, D-N.Y., an author of antibombing legislation, announced last week he would be in Thailand at midnight Tuesday to check on steps taken to halt the bombing.

Meat shortage could bring healthier hearts

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Today's runaway meat prices possibly can bring a dividend of fewer heart attacks and strokes, says a food expert.

Americans generally eat too much fat and some meats are a major source of it, says Mary Winston, nutritionist of the American Heart Association.

A high intake of fat is considered harmful to the heart, she explains. Being overweight also taxes your heart.

So, eating smaller portions of meat "would be a plus factor." So would the right choices of vegetables to substitute for the proteins contained in meat.

During World War II, the death rate from coronary heart attacks went down in countries where once-rich diets were cut back in total fat and calorie content.

But a wrong choice of substitutes for meat could be harmful, Mrs. Winston cautioned in an interview.

"Don't just substitute omelet for beefsteaks because eggs are cheaper. The yoke of one large egg contains 250 milligrams of cholesterol. Our Heart Association recommends you try to take in no more than 300 milligrams a day, averaged out over the week."

An excess of cholesterol, a waxy material, is blamed for clogging arteries of the heart and brain and producing heart attacks or strokes.

Food prices may well have profound effects on American patterns of eating, and housewives need some guidelines to assure good nutrition for their families, says Mrs. Winston. She was nutrition consultant to the new "American Heart Association Cookbook," containing more than 400 recipes from appetizers to desserts.

For years, Americans have been getting some 40 per cent or more of all their calories from fats. Heart experts urge reducing it to 30 per cent, with less of the total fat being the "saturated" type, which hardens when left standing at room temperature.

The fat around meat is highly saturated.

Three ounces of lean beef provides 8.4 grams of fat and 189 calories.

Three ounces of chicken provides 5 grams of fat, and 150 calories.

But that's for chicken without the skin. Eat the skin, and the three ounces give you 14 grams of fat, and 248 calories, because most of the chicken fat lies on the inside of the skin.

Three ounces of most fishes supply 4.5 grams of fat and 126 calories. The fat in fish is unsaturated.

Meats, poultry and fish, eggs, skim and whole milk, yogurt and cottage cheese, are "complete" proteins containing all eight proteins considered essential to good nutrition, plus others.

Vegetables differ in content of the essential eight. Soybean contains seven, lacking one called methionine. Corn meal has that, though, so a combination of the two foods make up a diet as effective as one based on meat.

Various other combinations fill the protein demand, such as noodles with kidney beans and walnuts, grains and dried beans. Rice is not a "complete" protein. But a little meat added to it wipes out the deficit, making it quite sufficient.

On other points of advice, Mrs. Winston says:

—The potato is much maligned as "fattening." But it is the butter, the sour cream, and other goodies that people put on the potato that makes it high in calories.

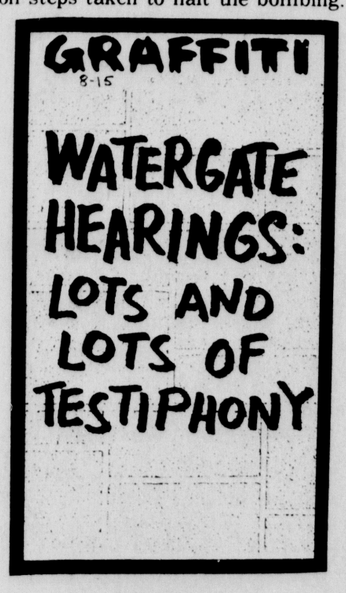

—If you are cutting back on butter and milk, which are good sources of iron and vitamin A, consider having beef liver once a week, because it's another good source of these nutrients.

—Frozen dinners "are terrible, nutritionally and economically."

—An all-vegetable diet could be deficient in vitamin B12, ordinarily supplied from meat and dairy products, but green leafy vegetables do contain it.

—To fill up, don't go for snacks like potato chips, cheese puffs, things that contribute little nutritionally.

—Many Chinese dishes are good, because they contain lean meat with vegetables that meet the protein needs.

Orlett voting probe rejected

By PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A joint House-Senate Ethics Committee decided Tuesday it had no jurisdiction in the first case it was handed while legislative leaders signed 106 bills and sent them to Gov. John J. Gilligan for final approval.

By a 6-5 party line vote, the Ethics Committee decided not to look into a complaint that Rep. Edward J. Orlett, D-34 Dayton, was off the floor July 10 when he was recorded as voting on several bills.

In addition to the bills signed, the legislative leaders also signed two constitutional amendments for the November ballot.

One provides for a Vietnam War veterans bonus and the other would put municipal and county courts into the 1968 modern courts amendment, making judges in those courts eligible for in-term pay raises.

The hearing into the Orlett votes never got off the ground as the 12-member committee, with one of six Republicans absent, convened. It bogged down first on procedural questions, then upon constitutional grounds.

"It was regretable and avoidable that the committee broke down on a partisan basis on what should have been a nonpartisan issue," said Sen. Paul E. Gillmor, R-2 Port Clinton, chairman.

The committee was created last December as part of a bill jumping legislator's salaries from $12,750 to $14,000 a year. The legislature recently boosted them again to $17,000.

Rep. Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, offered the motion to overule the chairman on his ruling the hearings were valid. Democrats provided the muscle for the vote, since Sen. William H. Mussey, R-14 Batavia, was absent.

The 1973 legislature appropriated $81. million for a two-year period for auxiliary services such as counseling, remedial reading audio-visual aids and health care.

ADDITIONAL BODIES IN TEXAS KILLINGS—Authorities wield shovels gingerly as they uncover another teen-age corpse in the bizarre homosexual mass killings in Texas. Four bodies were found in shallow graves near High Island, bringing to 27 the total number of victims accounted for. (AP Wirephoto)

2 youths indicted

HOUSTON (AP) — A grand jury has indicted two youths in the Texas mass murders and an official says more indictments are in the works.

The jury returned indictments Tuesday against Elmer Wayne Henley Jr., 17, and David Owen Brooks, 18, in connection with the country's worst confirmed mass slayings.

The bodies of 27 teen-aged victims of the homosexual slayings over the past three years have been unearthed since last week. Nine of the bodies have been identified.

Three indictments named Henley, who had been charged with two slayings in Houston and three in San Augustine County. He has told police he took part in nine killings.

The jury returned one indictment against Brooks. He had been charged with one murder in Houston but has said he did not kill anyone.

One indictment alleged both Brooks and Henley killed William Ray Lawrence, 15, "by strangling him with a cord and in some manner and by some means, instruments and weapons to the grand jury unknown" on July 10.

The other two indictments accuse Henley of strangling Marty Ray Jones with a cord and of shooting to death Charles C. Cobble. The two 17-year-olds were slain July 27.

The grand jury returned the indictments after hearing 6½ hours of testimony from police detectives and Billy Ridinger, 20, who entered and left the jury room with a brown paper sack over his head.

Brooks said in a statement to police that he was at the home of Dean Allen Corll "when they got Billy Ridinger.... And I believe the only reason he is alive now is that I begged them not to kill him."

A source in the investigation quoted Henley and Brooks as saying they received money for procuring youths for Corll, 33. The source said the victims were taken to Corll's home, tied to a board "spreadeagled," sexually assaulted and later murdered.

It was Corll's death at Henley's hands last Wednesday that brought the mass slayings to light.

Dist. Atty. Carol Vance said Corll was "probably responsible for, or in on, most of the killings in which the bodies have been found."

However, Vance told newsmen that more indictments were possible and that he expected to present more evidence to the grand jury, possibly Thursday. "There is much more to be done," he said.

"This is not going to be all the indictments," said Asst. Dist. Atty. Mike Hinton, who has been conducting the district attorney's investigation. "What is holding us up now is identification of the bodies. Under Texas law, you can't indict a person for murder unless the identity of the deceased is established."

The search for further bodies has been at least temporarily suspended. There had been reports the death toll might be as high as 30.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was up 2.11 at 872.82. The blue chip indicator closed Tuesday down 12.49 at 870.71, near the closing low of the year, 869,13, on June 25.

U.N. deadlocks over sanctions against Israel

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. Security Council was deadlocked today over Egyptian and Soviet demands for sanctions against Israel for forcing down an Arab airliner last week.

All council members including the United States, Israel's chief backer, were ready to support a resolution condemning the Israeli action. But the United States was believed likely to veto anything stronger than censure.

Hinting at this, U.S. Ambassador John A. Scali told newsmen late Tuesday he saw "red flags" in some of the proposals during continuing negotiations outside the council chamber.

A council vote was expected late today or Thursday, depending on the outcome of the talks.

But in Israel, Premier Golda Meir said her government will continue to protect its citizens at home and abroad "with whatever means we have."

"We have nothing to be ashamed of — let those who censure us be ashamed," Mrs. Meir said.

Diplomatic sources reported that one obstacle to agreement on a Security Council resolution was removed when Egypt abandoned a demand that all countries be asked to halt aid to Israel enabling it to "pursue aggression."

Other proposed wording was reported still objectionable to the United States, Britain and France.

Speaking in the council debate Tuesday, Scali deplored the Israeli action as a violation of the U.N. Charter and of the rule of law in commercial aviation.

KSU evidence given to agency

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional committee that has been investigating the 1970 Kent State campus shootings has turned over its evidence to the Justice Department, including what may be the only film in existence of the actual gunfire.

Also among the evidence, according to a committee source but disputed by a department official, is information that several Kent State students can identify the National Guardsman who fired the first shot.

The fusillade of bullets that followed left four students dead and nine others wounded. The case was recently reopened by Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson.

Investigators for the House Judiciary subcommittee headed by Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., Tuesday submitted to the department records of interviews with some 48 individuals, several films and other evidence stemming from their months-long probe.

But in an interview Tuesday night, Asst. Atty. Gen. J. Stanley Pottinger, who is heading the new probe, said that little of the committee's evidence will be useful.

"It would be very unfortunate to convey the impression that some new hard evidence has occurred by virtue of sending to us old information, state information or insignificant information. And most of what we have is just that," he said.

A committee spokesman had earlier conceded that most of the evidence turned over by the committee had previously been available to investigators.

Pottinger also sent a telegram to Edwards complaining that an Associated Press story had quoted a committee staff member as suggesting that the panel had turned over information on who fired the first shot. He said such a conclusion was "inaccurate and misleading" and that he had received no such information.

The gunfire film was taken by a student from his dormitory window 400 yards from the guardsmen who were firing into a group of students during the antiwar demonstration that led to the confrontation.

But, while the footage is believed to be the only film showing guardsmen actually firing on students, spokesmen for both the Justice Department and the committee said it lacks sharpness and individual guardsmen cannot be identified from it.

Dam ruling slated soon

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Carl Rubin said he will rule within 10 days on a suit brought by the state of Ohio to stop two federally funded dam projects in southwestern Ohio.

The U.S. Corps of Army Engineers has spent $28 million on the Caesar's Creek and East Fork reservoirs.

The suit filed by the state, several individuals and organizations contended the Corps has not complied with the National Environmental Policy Act of 1970 and other federal laws in connection with the projects in Warren and Clermont counties.

U.S. District Judge Timothy S. Hogan ordered the work stopped last month then stepped down from the case because he owns property in Clermont County. Rubin was then assigned.

Both projects are on tributaries of the Little Miami River. Caesar's Creek is in Warren County and East Fork is in Clermont County.

Radioactive waste disposal

A spokesman for the Natural Resources Defense Council may have a point when he asserts: "It seems clear that the AEC is not the most reliable investigator of AEC practices." That view has led this small, non-profit group of attorneys and scientists in northern California to call for an independent study of the Atomic Energy Commission's radioactive waste management policy and procedures.

The AEC itself has, perhaps unwittingly, provided much of the stimulus for demanding such an investigation. This is found in a recent Commission report on leakage of intensely radioactive material from a storage tank at the Hanford Reservation in Washington state. Some 115,000 gallons of this dangerous stuff seeped out over a period of seven weeks, the report says. It blames poor training and inadequate supervision of workers, and informs us that the leak might have been confined to only about 30,000 gallons — still an unacceptably large amount — had the leak been detected earlier.

The Natural Resources Defense Council spokesman, John Bryson, said with no small justice in commenting on these disclosures: "The report stands in sharp contrast to continual assurances by the AEC that outsiders, like the public and other governmental agencies, need not concern themselves about radioactive waste because all is being done that needs to be done."

It is clear that laxity and failure to adopt basic safety precautions contributed to the situation at Hanford. Nor is there much consolation in the recent reassurance by AEC Chairman Dixy Lee Ray that the leaks pose no "threat to life or liberty of anything else." That sounds almost flippant, and its accuracy may be questioned. Certainlythe AEC should be zealous in its concern to make sure that all possible measures are taken to guard against the dangers of environmental contamination.

There have been occasional hints that this is not being done. Just the other day, for example, the Denver Post revealed that hundreds of tons of radioactive waste are buried on the grounds at the Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant northwest of Denver. A spokesman for the firm which operates the plant for the AEC suggested that buried plutonium-contaminated material "is about as safely stored here as it possibly could be." He also said (in the words of the Denver Post account) that the material "would be removed as soon as the AEC answers the questions of long-range disposal of radioactively contaminated wastes."

It is a question that must be resolved. Meanwhile, an independent study by some governmental agency other than the AEC is not at all a bad idea.

Military 'PR' spending

The Department of Defense includes as public relations only providing news media with military activities information intended to foster good relations between the military and the public. This conveniently narrow definition enables the Pentagon to violate the ceiling set by Congress on military public relations.

That ceiling is 28 million dollars annually — a healthy sum, one would think, to spend on saying nice things about the military establishment. A report by the General Accounting Office says that in fact promotional activities "not included in public affairs expenditures" amounted to an additional 24 million dollars annually over the past two fiscal years. In short, during those two years the Pentagon spent 48 million more than Congress authorized for this purpose.

There might be some quibbling over certain items included in this total. Most of them, however, clearly fit within the public relations aura. Item: four military air teams which perform at fairs and other civic events for no other discernible purpose than to advertise the military. Item: civilian tours of military bases around the country. Item: service-related exhibits designed to extrol the glories and advantages of the military life. Item: the Defense Information School, which trains military personnel as public relations experts.

The GAO is very polite in its report: it says blandly that the Defense Department "has been too conservative in defining its public affairs activities for purposes of reporting." Translation: A lot of pertinent activities have not been included.

The GAO also suggest that the Pentagon "reexamine its position on what it includes as public relations costs." That is a suggestion in which we concur.

When Congress establishes a 28-million-dollar public relations spending ceiling and the Pentagon spends almost that much again on activities clearly intended to generate public support of the military, something is wrong.

WASHINGTON CALLING. . .by Marquis Childs

Political campaign operation

WASHINGTON — The one confession that Vice President Spiro Agnew made, if only glancingly in his press conference, gets down to the guts of the matter. Anyone who doesn't know that campaign contributions come from contractors doing business with the state is naive, he said.

The Vice President as governor of Maryland was a large and vital party of the highway operation, with contractors spending hundreds of millions of dollars to pave the state with concrete. What the grand jury in Baltimore is trying to sort out is when a campaign contribution becomes a bribe. The line between the two is almost invisible.

It is the system of contracts for contributions in which Agnew has been a willing player that should be going into. And eventually rooted out. This is far more important than whether one individual or several individuals took contractors' money meant to be paid off with a reward once the recipient was in the seat of authority.

The highway billions are entwined with Congress and every state capital in the country. The highway lobby, with the principal focus in the American Roadbuilders Association, is rated as the most powerful in Washington. The affinity with Senate and House Public Works Committees is close and mutually endearing.

An example of the bond that ties the two together is in the year-long struggle to bring out a highway bill that would yield something more than cheese parings for mass transit. Harpooned at the end of the 1972 session, the bill was wrangled over this year, ending with a Senate-House conference that went on for three months. It was in this closed-door struggle that the highway lobbyists and their Congressional allies made a last-ditch stand.

Waiting on the sidelines, asking like Oliver Twist for just a little bit more, were the advocates of help for mass transit, the starving poor relative of the highway builders. What finally came out was more than what at one time seemed possible.

Out of the Highway Trust Fund, broken for the first time, there will be $200 million for bus purchases beginning in January. In fiscal 1976 mass transit will get $800 million not restricted to any form of transportation. A few Senators from big-city states held out against the highway bulldozers.

But the triumph for mass transit pales alongside what the highway contractors walked away with. The total for interstate roads was $8.6 billion over three years and for primary and secondary roads it was $3.3 billion. This will mean additional thousands of square miles of concrete spread over the tortured earth.

Even so, this was not enough to satisfy the voracious appetite of those who want it all. Rep. William H. Harsha, of Ohio, ranking Republican member of the House Public Works Committee, demanded to know after the conference report became public that if the highway lobby is so powerful why it had not been around to block this steal from the sacred trust fund.

Behind the highway lobby is the motorcar industry and the oil companies. Here are the powers that rule the economy with one out of every six persons employed in building cars or keeping the wheels running. They may, however, have their rule challenged by a new broom in the Environmental Protection Agency.

Hopefully, Russell E. Train, appointed director after the post had been vacant for many weeks, will put a brake on the motorcar, the chief pollutant of the atmosphere. Plans have been formulated for curbing the one-driver-one-car commuter into the central city from the suburbs. Train has proved his ability and he is said to have been given ample authority to move against the pollution rapidly destroying the environment.

In calling a press conference and uttering forthright denials of the charges brought against him by the Baltimore prosecutor, Agnew made a good beginning in his own defense. That he will continue to be equally forthright, with no evasion behind legal technicalities, is important both for the Vice President and for the public belief in what is left for integrity and confidence.

For Agnew, however, there is a larger opportunity. Given his knowledge of the contracting-contribution system he could, when the dust of his own alleged involvement has cleared away, call for drastic reforms. That he will do so is highly improbable.

White House gets live yule tree

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ecology-minded families who have switched from cut to live Christmas trees will be joined by the White House this year.

The National Park Service announced Monday that this year it will transplant a tree from Pennsylvania to be planted behind the White House and used for the annual holiday observance.

In the past, huge trees have been cut in various states and erected near the White House for the two-week observance.

False swimming pool promises disclosed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Commerce Director Dennis Shaul has warned consumers against salesmen pledging to cut swimming pool prices if a buyer's home qualifies as a model.

Shaul said Monday the homes of persons buying from one northeastern Ohio firm never were used as demonstrators. He said the firm grossly exaggerated the original price of the above-ground pools.

"ACTUALLY, I'M PLANNING ON BEING A RICH LADY TENNIS PLAYER."

Hal Boyle . . . Many things left yet undone

NEW YORK (AP) — No matter how busy we seem to be, how we do tarnish our days with rust!

Our list of accomplishments at the end is pretty puny, considering all the things we could have done but didn't.

The vast undone — how it does haunt us at times.

For example, it makes a fellow well past the midmark of life wonder how he has wasted his years when he stops and realizes that he has never even once:

—Escaped from a prison island.

—Voted for a Prohibitionist or a Vegetarian candidate for public office.

—Sent a monocle to the jeweler's to be polished.

—Bulldogged a buck deer by his antlers.

—Bluffed a buffalo after pulling its beard.

—Eaten from a pork barrel or been swilled at the public trough.

—Made love to a lady acrobat or a female politician.

—Been the favorite pen pal of a member of Europe's fading nobility.

—Gotten lost in a cave.

—Slept overnight in a jail.

—Won a hog calling contest.

—Been sued for a divorce or non-payment of a bill.

—Bought a girl a falsie.

—Ridden a camel bareback.

—Stuffed snuff up an elephant's trunk.

—Lived on borrowed time.

—Lost any hostages to fortune.

—Played a piano duet with Liberace.

—Kissed Helen Hayes on both cheeks.

—Been caught cheating at bingo in a church.

—Gone skinny dipping with a starlet during a movie festival on the Riviera.

—Been arrested during a Sunday vice raid in Philadelphia.

—Caught a cold from Raquel Welch.

—Courted a girl in a Stutz Bearcat, or made one walk home from a ride in a horsedrawn buggy.

—Stolen money from a piggy bank.

—Drunk nectar from heaven through a straw, or sopped it up with a homemade biscuit.

Yes, the wonder grows. How could a fellow live so long and do so little? Where did the time go?

5 men get life for 8 murders

CHRISTIANSTED, V.I. (AP) — The five black men convicted of eight murders will appeal the life sentences given them at the trial's tumultuous windup.

The defendants shouted obscenities at U.S. District Court Judge Warren Young and their relatives cried Monday when the judge sentenced each of the men to eight consecutive life terms and six 15-year terms.

A mostly black jury convicted the men of the murder at the Fountain Valley Golf Club last Sept. 6 of eight persons, seven of them white. By having the sentences run consecutively instead of concurrently, the judge appeared to rule out any possibility of parole.

Yesterday's Answer

Dear Abby:

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Is intermarriage foe prejudiced?

DEAR ABBY: I was brought up (and I brought my own children up) to "be friends with everybody, but to marry your own kind."

Would you consider this pre-judice?

I have respect for all religions, and colors, and have friends of all denominations, but I do not condone or believe in intermarriage. I try to find the good in the individual, regardless of color, creed or origin. Marriage is difficult enough without the problems intermarriages presents.

Would you please give me your opinion?

NOT PREJUDICED

DEAR NOT: I agree, marriage IS difficult, and marrying one's "own kind" may possibly reduce the number of problems. (It may not.) But I believe in the right of every adult to marry whomever he wants. Were you to bring up your children to try to find the good in the individual, regardless of his own choice, then I would say you were not prejudiced.

DEAR ABBY: I wish you could tell me how to solve a problem which has been bothering me for a long time, but has gotten worse lately.

I am over 65 years old, and my eyesight is growing dim, even with eyeglasses. I do all my own housekeeping, cooking, washing, etc. My daughter-in-law comes here quite often, and she always points out a speck of dust I missed in a corner, or a few crumbs I overlooked on the table, or some fingerprints on my refrigerator

I am not a careless housekeeper, Abby, but I just can't see as well as I used to, and her constantly finding something I overlooked makes me feel bad. Is there some way I can let her know how much this bothers me? When I know she's coming I look for these little things she might find, but my heart grows heavy because she always finds something I missed. Help me.

HURT

DEAR HURT: The next time "The Inspector" visits, greet her with: "If you should see a speck of dust, a crumb, or a fingerprint I overlooked, please don't mention it as I do the best I can, but my eyes aren't what they used to be." And if she forgets, remind her as often as necessary.

DEAR ABBY: I am desperately in need of someone to confide in. I am an 18-year-old girl whose parents were divorced two years ago. I am living with my father who has recently started dating an attractive young girl. She is 21, and my father is 41.

My problem is that this girl has been making passes at my boy friend when my father is not around. She is so obvious. I have noticed it myself.

My father is very much in love with this girl and is even contemplating marriage. He is very wealthy, and it is my gut feeling that this girl is just after his money.

How can I warn my father without destroying his ego?

NAMELESS IN TORRENCE

DEAR NAMELESS: You can't. Love is voluntarily blind. If your suspicions are correct, you can only hope your father catches on before he gets hooked.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700 L.A. Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Ohio perspective

Gilligan has mini-legislatures

By DEAN SCHOTT
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — During his term as governor, John J. Gilligan has given rise to a new branch of government—mini-legislatures.

The smaller general assemblies are citizens' task forces appointed by the governor to tackle a variety of problems in state government.

Since 1971, more than 400 Ohioans from different backgrounds have served on 11 citizens' task forces dealing with tax reform, environmental protection, transportation, drugs, prison reform, health care, drugs, mental health, local government services, hospital licensing and higher education.

"The task forces do bring together a disparate group of people from different backgrounds, just like the legislature," said Robert Cecile, former aide to Gilligan. "But the task forces have an advantage over the legislature because they can deal with one area.

"The legislature has to deal with hundreds of matters during a session. The task force can focus on one area extensively, which the legislature cannot do."

The governor has been extremely pleased with his task forces. He has said about 75 per cent of their recommendations have been implemented administratively or by the legislature.

Gilligan's first task force on tax reform, announced shortly after his election in November 1971, has been considered one of the biggest successes, Cecile said.

The 34-member panel broke the early ground for enacting personal and corporate income taxes. The 109th General Assembly eventually approved the taxes after a lengthy battle.

Other task forces recommended creation of the Environmental Protection Agency, Departments of Transportation, Corrections and Mental Health and Mental Retardation. The legislature approved all of them.

"Basically, the task force can draw on people not necessarily involved in state government and use their expertise in various fields and their experience as citizens living on a day-to-day basis," Cecile said. "They can put their ideas together and come up with some consensus on what needs to be done.

"Sometimes in state government, people have a tendency to lose perspective and lose touch with what's going on."

Costs of the task forces range from about $300 a year for the Governor's Drug Abuse Council to $600,000 for the Local Government Services Commission. The latter has been funded by four private foundations plus $100,000 from the state.

Speaking of Your Health...

Ring Finger Remains Constant

My daughter asked me to explain an observation that she made while playing the piano.

She noticed that she cannot raise her ring finger to a level as high as the other fingers.

I was surprised to learn that no one in our family coul do better than she.

How can you explain this?

Mrs. J.F., La.

Dear Mrs. F.:

Your daughter's discovery is a scientific observation that was made many years ago.

No one in your family can elevate the ring finger, nor can anyone in my family, nor anyone else's family.

For some unexplained reason, in human beings a firm band of tendonous tissue is present between the middle finger and the ring finger.

Very recently, Dr. Dennis R. Wenger, in Iowa City, referred to this tendon because of a series of injuries brought to his attention.

A group of football players were found to have had this tendon injured during play.

Dr. Wenger pointed out that the condition is sometimes overlooked and thus may be responsible for permanent stiffness of the finger.

Many years ago, a famous pianist recognized the limitation of motion of his ring fingers. He wanted the tendon cut to give him greater strength in those fingers.

The doctor he consulted wisely turned him down and said, "Use that finger for fine shading only!"

When my husband comes home from his Wednesday night card-playing session he is a bundle of nerves, whether he wins or loses.

Do you think these games are as relaxing as he thinks they are?

Mrs. R.V.A., Vt.

Dear Mrs. A.:

Many years ago, a physician was curious about this very problem. He became interested in the physical and the psychological changes that occur in people while playing both social and tournament bridge.

He embarked on a study with scientific precision, and performed electrocardiograph studies, blood-pressure tests, and others in order to determine the effect of cards on tension.

He found, as would be expected, that the pulse rate and the heart beat fluctuated, especialy during moments of special excitement during the game.

Card games are exhilarating and would be expected to produce the temporary changes that you notice in your husband after an evening at cards.

The general excitement, a drink or two, and the invariable additional cigarettes step up the general metabolism of an individual.

After such an evening of excitement it is difficult to "turn off" immediately the emotional "faucet" before relaxing.

If your husband seems to be paying an unusual penalty for this excitement perhaps he should learn the art of moderation.

Birth record still sought

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Atty. Gen. Theodore L. Sendak, who has denied permission for a Fort Wayne newspaper to examine a controversial birth certificate at the State Board of Health, says he bases his opposition on a 1948 ruling by one of his predecessors.

The Fort Wayne News-Sentinel had obtained a court order in Allen County last week to examine the birth record said to list a George S. McGovern of Mitchell, S.D., as the father of an illegitimate child born in Fort Wayne in the early 1940s.

After Sendak refused access, the newspaper initiated contempt of court proceedings against the attorney general's office.

Watergate touches guest register

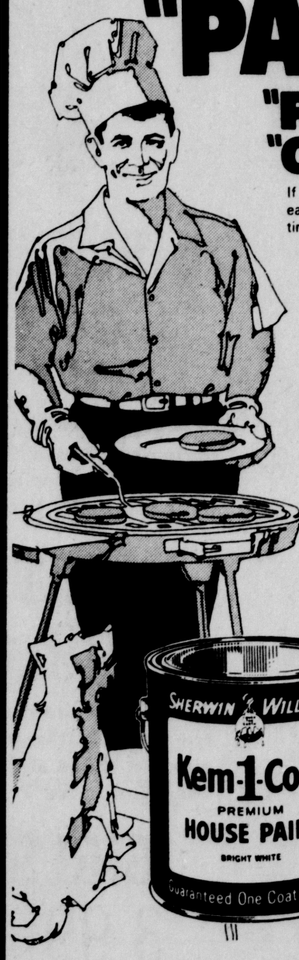

YORBA LINDA, Calif. (AP) — The Watergate scandal is touching even the guest register at the little white frame house where President Nixon was born.

Comments range from "Impeach him" to "I believe in you, Dick."

Mrs. Vince Ellingson, who moved into the residence eight years ago with her husband, said about Watergate: "I don't even like to think about it. I don't even like to listen to it on the radio."

Fayette County represented at WCTU meet

The Lancaster Federation of Woman's Christian Temperance Union met at the Lancaster campgrounds with 10 counties represented. Mrs. Florence Bethards, Fayette County president, and Mrs. Alice Bush attended from this county.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union is an organization of Christian women banded together for the protection of the home, the abolition of the liquor traffic and the triumph of Christ's golden rule in custom and in law.

Devotions were brought by several representatives of the counties. Miss Jean Wirtz of Farm Bureau was the guest speaker, whose topic was "Traffic Safety." Ohio has 38 organizations working concerning Traffic Safety. She urged all to give farmers plenty of space so they can farm to avoid the shortage of food.

Marcella Helser, vice president of the Ohio WCTU, also spoke, and special music was provided by a quartet from Pleasantville, a trio from Columbus, and also Curt Davis and his wife Charlotte, the great organist who has performed at the Lancaster campgrounds for the past 28 years. They broadcast from the auditorium each evening.

The group also visited the room built in memory of the late Rev. Harold Lindsey, manager of the campgrounds.

House Ways, Means Committee is slowly changing

By EDMOND Le BRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee, the shaper of tax, trade, Social Security, medicare and welfare legislation, is getting a foretaste of what it may be like to operate without the legendary leadership of Chairman Wilbur D. Mills.

The Arkansas Democrat who has headed the pivotal committee for 15 years says he will retire at the end of next year unless he can find relief from a painful back ailment.

Moreover, and quite apart from the future of its chairman, the House's oldest and perhaps most powerful standing committee is slowly changing. Like all of Congress, it is being pressed by public opinion; by subtle power shifts; by ideas brought in by newer members.

Mills, seeking medical advice and treatment, left the chair some 10 days before the congressional recess began. The committee was reaching the decision stage on the complex trade legislation President Nixon says he needs because of international negotiations beginning in Tokyo in mid-September.

Mills' temporary departure at such a time would have been almost unthinkable earlier. He is the kind of strong chairman whose views come to the fore and prevail when the committee gets down to voting. Mills does not ignore colleagues' opinions, but shapes the consensus.

Mills' absence left the responsibility for presiding and steering the legislation toward final agreement to the next-ranking Democrat, Rep. Al Ullman of Oregon.

Ullman's pinch-hitting was universally praised in separate interviews with a cross-section of the committee membership. Nevertheless, without Mills, the work perceptibly slowed down. The Mills-endorsed optimistic deadline of completed committee action on the trade bill before the recess, was not met.

Committee members said Mills, whose reputation as one of the closest-mouthed men in Congress is well earned, left no instructions with Ullman. He did not even tell colleagues or key staff members where he was going.

Rep. Herman T. Schneebeli, senior Republican member of the committee, commented, "Al is doing a bang-up job under difficulties," a judgment echoed by both liberal and conservative Democratic members.

At a final session before the recess, committee members reportedly agreed informally that Ullman will have to assume greater authority if Mills is unable to rejoin the deliberations in September.

Ullman himself, while staying away from any criticism of the chairman, told a reporter there will have to be a firm schedule and a push to get the bill to the House before Oct. 1.

Mills' seniority and influence—the two are closely linked in the House—are formidable. None of the other current Ways and Means members ever knew him as a mere colleague. He was chairman before any won the coveted election to the House's No. 1 committee.

His method of operation includes private negotiations with presidents, regardless of party, as well as other high executive officials and spokesmen for private interests in fields embraced by his committee's wide-ranging jurisdiction. Shortly before leaving Washington he had a long personal session with Nixon.

Ullman, at 59 five years younger than Mills, was overshadowed by the chairman as he moved up the seniority ladder to the position of presumptive successor. Until recently, he figured most often in the news as a spokesman for the economic interests of his state and the Northwest generally.

Considered about as fiscally conservative as Mills, he has nevertheless on occasion differed with the chairman, for example, on welfare reform.

Since last year, Ullman has been acquiring a growing national prominence by strong advocacy of basic reform of Congress' budgetary function. He is co-chairman of a special committee which is steering legislation for Congress to set up its own budget every year and exercise central control over the now scattered appropriation and revenue raising operations.

No matter who the chairman may be in the future, change has come and will continue to come to the Ways and Means Committee, which began as a temporary panel in 1789 and was made permanent in 1801.

Reform moves ponderously in the House, but the direction is clear. Power is flowing from the committees and their chairmen—who have been compared to feudal barons—to the party leaders and the caucuses composed of all members. The trend is especially significant for Democrats, who as the majority party control the committees and name the chairmen. The caucus now has an opportunity to vote individually on each chairman—a potential threat to the once-secure seniority system.

The closed rule has been a frequently used tool in the Ways and Means kit. Granted routinely in the past by the Rules Committee to all tax and similar measures, it means simply that members at large have no opportunity to offer amendments when the bill comes to the floor. They must vote it up or down in the form presented by the committee.

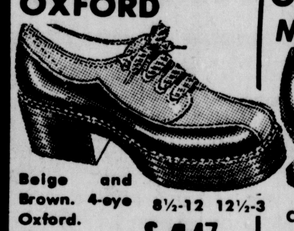

But the Rules Committee— now, incidentally, more closely tied to the House leadership than it has been in a generation—has let it be known it will no longer automatically grant this complete protection to bills produced by Ways and Means. Even if the committee were willing, a new Democratic rule provides that if 50 members of the caucus insist on an opportunity to offer amendments, the Democratic majority of the Rules Committee must accede. The rule has been hailed by members who long complained that tax policy was shaped, not by all the members of the House, but by the 25 who make up the Ways and Means Committee.

The likelihood that the committee would not be able to obtain a completely closed rule on the highly controversial trade legislation is one reason why Ways and Means has moved slowly and cautiously in shaping the bill.

A new House rule provides that all committee sessions, including the "mark-up" sessions where the decisions are made, must be open to press and public unless the committee votes on the record to close them. Mills moved for closed mark-up sessions. The committee sustained him—but with a surprising 10 negative votes. Even so, Ways and Means, like other committees, now must make public after executive sessions the roll calls by which decisions were arrived at.

The committee has long had an arrangement, useful to a chairman who needs to keep members in line, for handling minor tax measures that often affect only a few firms—sometimes a single one in a particular congressional district. These "members' bills" would be briefly and informally discussed in closed session; approved by the committee, and brought up on the floor with minimum debate for passage by unanimous consent. After outside organizations as well as some Congress members began analyzing and publicizing the revenue effects and the narrow application of some members' bills, objections on the floor cropped up last year. Since then, the committee has been noticeably more circumspect in offering them.

40 youngsters enrolled in camp

By JACK SOMMERS
County Extension Agent, 4-H

4-H Day Camp is in full swing for the fifth week this summer at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, 1003 N. North St. Over 40 youngsters from 8 to 13 years old are enjoying activities in crafts, recreation and project work.

Cathy White and Jonelle Donohue, program directors, are conducting a program that offers the Day Campers a chance to complete a 4-H project during each 8-day camp. The projects include "Exploring Home Economics", Physical Fitness", Woodworking", "Me, You and Others" and "Bicycle".

With the help of teenage counselors the youngsters are also involved in making crafts provided by the city recreation program and many recreational activities. In addition, each camper receives a morning snack and lunch.

Financial support for the Day Camp Program has come from a variety of local, state and federal sources including the Fayette County Commissioners, Ohio 4-H Foundation, and the Food and Nutrition Service, USDA, OSU Workstudy Program and the Neighborhood Youth Corps.

4-H BEGINNERS CAMP was a lot of fun and learning for 52 Fayette County 4-H'ers at Camp Clifton last week. The 9 and 10-year-olds were involved in many new experiences at camp.

During camp closing ceremonies several campers said that they had learned to swim, to work, to wash dishes, to make new friends and to dance. From the looks of the crafts hall at the end of camp, I'd say that many learned to make and finish milk stools too.

Highlighting the activities were the campfire and recreation programs where the campers put on skits, were part of challenges, relays, circle games and dances as well as singing.

Thanks are due the counselors who did an outstanding job in working with the youngsters in activities and cabins. The Fayette County Counselors were Julie Frost, Paula Welsh, Cathy VanDyke, John Mayer, Patty Smith and Marianne Arnold.

Reasons for soaring wheat prices noted

WASHINGTON (AP) — High export demand and lowered forecasts on this season's wheat crop size are two main reasons given for soaring wheat prices on the commodities and cash markets.

The supply situation has its origins in the just-concluded wheat marketing year.

Last year, with a bumper crop, exporters sold record amounts — 1.185 billion bushels — after a decade of annual totals in the neighborhood of 750 million bushels. Last year's total included the 440 million bushels sold to Russia.

When the current marketing year started, as a consequence, carryover reserves, at 428 million bushels, were 50 per cent below their level on July 1, 1972, a week before the U.S.-Soviet grain pact was announced.

By July 13 of this year, perhaps 947 million bushels had been committed already for export, shippers said, although the government says a quarter of that may be duplicate reporting. In any case, of the total, 16 per cent had been sold to Russia, 12 per cent to the People's republic of China, 8 per cent to Japan and 11 per cent to the Common Market.

But, as the Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service notes in its latest wheat-situation report, last season's quick turnabouts in world supply and demand really set the stage for what is happening now. It gave this sequence of major events:

—U.S.-Soviet pact for $750 million in grain over three years was announced July 8, 1972. Buying had begun in early July.

—Soviet grain crops continued to deteriorate.

—Soviet buyers returned, placing additional orders for wheat, eventually $1 billion in the first year alone.

—In September, a Chinese grain purchase, the first in many years, was announced, changing the demand picture and fueling speculation.

—India's winter harvest was damaged heavily by monsoons; production dropped sharply. Poor Asian rice crops added to food-supply pressure.

—Australia's crop turned out 25 per cent below expectations.

—A backlog of shipments to Russia built up until a maritime pact was signed, then they clogged the channels, stimulating the bidding up of prices on commodity exchanges.

—Soviet crops got off to a bad winter start, prompting more speculation of another massive purchase.

—Prices eased after "setasides" were suspended for the 1973 crop in a move to add to future supplies.

—Devaluation of the dollar began to have an effect.

—The government had a particularly heavy sale of reserves in March.

—The aura of famine again surfaced. Questions arose about world agriculture's capability to meet the needs.

—Late in the season, foreign buyers bought 750 million bushels of the coming crop, sparking an upturn in prices.

—Speculative buying has apparently been building.

SQUAD LEADERS—Cadet Capt. Roger Allen (left) and Cadet Lt. Col. Paul Woods, Jr., were selected to head the local squadron of the Civil Air Patrol at a Class A encampment being held at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base through Aug. 19. Capt. Allen was named group commander while Lt. Col. Woods was chosen as the deputy commander. The two are in command of some 30 cadets at the 10-day encampment.

Ohioan among shooting case defendants

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — A federal court jury today was to begin deliberations in the trial of three men charged with obstruction of justice in the shooting of former state Assistant Atty. Gen. Phillip J. Graziani.

Twelve days of testimony ended Tuesday, and defense and government attorneys were to complete their summations today.

Charged in the April 8, 1972 shooting are Claude Weldon Truslow, 29, and Bernard Lee Brumfield, 31, both of Charleston, and George Thomas Davidson Jr., 36, of Lebanon, Ohio. Also accused but to be tried separately is Robert Clements of Charleston.

Graziani was considered a key witness in the government's case against former state Atty. Gen. C. Donald Robertson, Robertson's brother Dana and former state Federal Housing Administration Director James F. Haught. Graziani could not testify because of his wounds.

The Robertsons and Haught are serving prison terms after pleading guilty to charges in connection with a bribery scheme.

Lottery drawing to begin program

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — A lottery drawing Aug. 24 will begin an urban homestead program that offers free homes to people willing to fix them up.

Ten city-owned homes below housing standards will be offered in the first drawing this month. A second group of vacant houses will be offered in the fall, according to a spokesman in the city Housing Department.

Under a plan approved by the City Council last May, a house will be given to a person willing to bring it up to city housing standards within 18 months. The person also must live in the house for at least three years before being granted title to it.

Between 50 and 60 applications have been submitted for the first 10 homes.

Women's equality day proclaimed

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — By a 31-0 vote, the all-male California Senate has adopted a resolution setting Aug. 26 as Women's Recognition and Equality Day in California.

Women won the right to vote in all of the United States on Aug. 26, 1920.

The resolution already has won Assembly approval. Its author is Assemblyman Julian Dixon of Los Angeles.

Homeowner exemption reimbursements issued

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state has sent checks totaling more than $24.4 million to 81 counties to replace taxes lost in granting exemptions to elderly homeowners.

State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson said the largest check, for $6,645,971.91, went to Cuyahoga County.

Under a 1972 law, the counties are permitted to exempt up to 70 per cent of taxable property owner by residents over 65 years old, depending on the residents' income.

Sawyer again heads recreation council

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Parks and Recreation Council has elected Dr. Robert Sawyer of Mansfield to his second term as chairman.

The council named Norma Jacob of Marion as vice chairman during its quarterly meeting.

Emergency procedures explained to Rotarians

A worthwhile program dealing with emergency medical procedures was presented at the regular meeting of the Washington C.H. Rotary Club Tuesday afternoon in the Country Club.

David Gerstner, a former Washington C.H. resident, now a training officer with the Miami Valley Ambulance Service, Dayton, explained emergency medical procedures above the normal first aid care.

Gerstner also showed a film provided by the American Heart Association which was primarily concerned with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and the techniques in administering the emergency treatment.

The film pointed out the different steps in giving mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and closed with a couple of very dramatic examples such as children choking and adults being stricken with heart attacks.

Following the film, Gerstner pointed out that suffocation is one of the leading causes of death for young children and that over 600,000 adults die each year from heart attacks.

Gerstner stressed that the time element is of the upmost importance since the human brain cannot survive more than three to five minutes without oxygen.

He said the techniques are relatively simple and he is hopeful that more persons will become involved in learning the procedures in case an opportunity ever arose where they had the chance to save someone's live.

Gerstner has conducted a number of classes for firemen, police and sheriff's deputies in the Washington C.H. area dealing with emergency medical procedures and techniques.

The business meeting was conducted by Rotary president Phil Grover, and John Bath was the program chairman. Peter Garr, of the Central Ohio Heart Association, was a guest. Visiting Rotarians were Clark Cory, of Chillicothe, Dr. Walter Felson, of Greenfield, and Art Dick, David Kohli, Lewis Conway, George Gerhardt and Ralph Ritts, all of Mount Sterling.

Pregnancy not valid to deny jobless pay

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—U. S. District Judge Robert Krupansky has ruled that women who have been fired solely because they became pregnant cannot be denied unemployment compensation.

William Papier, director of resarch of the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services, says the Tuesday decision will cost the state at least $300,000 a year.

Unemployment benefits have been denied employes discharged because of pregnancy. Judge Krupansky's order is retroactive to Oct. 22, 1972.

That is the day Edythe Lasko, the Fairview Park woman who challenged the denial, would have been eligible for benefits.

Mrs. Lasko, 24, a secretary-receptionist, was discharged in October about two weeks after she told her supervisor she was four months pregnant.

She filed a class action suit in December against the Bureau of Employment Services on behalf of all women fired because of pregnancy but still able to work. The suit was handled by the Women's Law Fund, which asked for a three-judge panel to declare the pregnancy section of the Unemployment Compensation Act unconstitutional.

U. S. Appellate Judge Paul C. Weick, Senior U. S. District Judge Girard Kalbfleisch and Krupansky decided that the law itself was not unconstitutional but that the state had applied it in an unconstitutional way.

They ruled in an order filed Tuesday that the case for damages would be properly handled by one judge.

An estimated 2,000 taxis serve Ohio.

Opening lead - jack of spades.

Bridge is primarily a game of deduction and, quite often, the opponents' bidding will help declarer make a contract that might otherwise fail.

Here is a spectacular example from the match between the United States and France in the 1969 world championship. The American North-South pair (Bobby Goldman and Billy Eisenberg) got to six diamonds and West led a spade.

Eisenberg won with the ace, played three rounds of trumps, cashed the king of spades, discarding a club, then ruffed a spade and played two more rounds of trumps to produce the following position:

♥Q 8 4 2
♣7

♥J 10 7 5 ♣A — N W E S — ♥9 3 ♣Q 10 8

♥A K 6
♣K 9

West had been forced to discard the jack of clubs on the previous trick in order to keep four hearts, and declarer's sole task at this point was to decide whether West had started with three hearts or four. It was next to certain that West had the ace of clubs to justify his double of one diamond.

Exercising his customary good judgment, Eisenberg concluded that West was far more likely to have four hearts and the lone ace of clubs at this point than three hearts and the ace and another club.

Accordingly, Eisenberg cashed the ace of hearts, continued with a low heart to the queen, and returned a club. When East put up the ten, South backed his judgment by playing the nine on it and in that way brought home the vulnerable small slam.

Bright yellow jet features organic food and rock music

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The airline's flying stock is painted bright yellow, features rock music, organic food, chess and checkers and a format that might allow passengers to play "destination bingo" on some flights.

"Freelandia," a one-plane airline that won its license last week from the Federal Aviation Administration, will operate its elderly DC8 on a travel-club route between Hawaii, the mainland and Europe.

The counter-culture's answer to the regularly scheduled airlines, Freelandia is the brainchild of former Wall Steet whiz Kenneth Moss. Moss, 30, made $1 million playing the stock market by the time he was 26 and dropped out a year later to become a wealthy vagabond.

"It's a travel club you need $50 to join; and if you have it, we can squeeze you in. There's always one more seat," said Moss.

Members who pay the initiation fee will be able to fly from Honolulu to San Francisco for $69, from San Francisco to Los Angeles for $12.50, from Los Angeles to New York for $69 and from New York to Brussels for $100, Moss said.

The first flight of Freelandia will take off from Hawaii "no later than Sept. 21, and earlier if we reach our minimum membership level of 3,000 before that," Moss said.

"It's going to be an alternative style of travel; we've even toyed with the idea of taking off from Hawaii and having something like a bingo game to decide where we should go on the fuel we had."

"The airlines are trapped into a cost cycle, but we don't have the overhead, the computers, or big brother watching us to see that we make that profit," Moss said, adding any money made above cost would be given to various charities.

Misuse of state seal claimed by Hughes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Rep. Rodney Hughes, R-78 Bellefontaine, has offered a resolution in the Ohio House that would reprimand the state Department of Public Works for alleged misuse of the Great Seal of Ohio.

Hughes, a critic of the department's operations, complained Tuesday the agency replaced the mountains, wheat field and stream with children holding hands.

Snakenaper surrenders

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A prized albino snake has been returned to the Cleveland Zoo by a teenage boy who was accompanied to the zoo by his father.

Charles R. Voracek, public service director for the zoo, said Tuesday that the albino and a corn snake, which also was taken from the zoo on Sunday, were in fine condition. He said no charges were contemplated against the boy.

Voracek said the father called him after recognizing the albino snake in his son's collection Monday. The white, cream and beige snake with a pink tongue and pink eyes was recognized by the father, who had read about the theft in a newspaper.

Voracek said the boy has collected snakes for several years and that he took good care of the two taken from the zoo.

Both snakes were taken Sunday at the close of the zoo's third annual reptile fair where amateurs put their exhibits on display next to the zoo's reptiles.

Hospitals feel meat shortage

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Beef shortages and higher prices for pork have caused several Cincinnati area hospitals to reduce menu selections.

St. Francis Hospital, run by the Franciscan Sisters of the Poor, will discontinue serving cafeteria meals on Sundays, except for short orders.

At St. Luke's Hospital in Fort Thomas, Ky., bacon has been eliminated from the breakfast menu.

"Our prices have gone up on some items double," said Mrs. Betty Estes, assistant director.

Ann Eberly, food director at St. Francis, said nothing will be changed on patients' menus. But she hopes employes will "brown bag it," bringing their own lunches.

For the past two weeks, employe menus at Bethesda and Bethesda-North hospitals have been without any meat. They have also stopped serving meals to visitors, said food director Thomas Dowling.

Brown wants another term

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Secretary of State Ted W. Brown, saying his support was "solid," indicated Tuesday he will announce his candidacy for reelection in 1974 later this year.

Brown, a Republican and the state's election chief for 23 years, said he has substantial support from Democrats. He attributed the support to Democratic Gov. John J. Gilligan's "so-called election reform program."

Brown said, "The governor's program is too radical, and many Democrats, who support the more moderate program for progressive election change that I have sponsored, resent Gilligan's tactics in obstructing important election legislation for purely partisan reasons."

Brown's decision to run again came as no surprise to Statehouse observers.

NEVER SEE A LIMIT SIGN—NEVER NEED A COUPON

Intensity continues between Reds, Bucs

CURLED — Pittsburgh Pirate pitcher Dock Ellis says he believes an order from Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn prompted manager Bill Virdon to tell him to stop wearing hair curlers in pre-game practice, but Kuhn denies he had anything to do with it.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — There's a special intensity to games between the Cincinnati Reds and Pittsburgh Pirates, playoff foes in two of the past three seasons.

"They respect us and we respect them, and it figures there'll be tight games when we get together," Johnny Bench said Tuesday night after his three hits helped the Reds edge Pittsburgh 5-4.

"It seems like we've had so many one-run games," echoed Tony Perez, who drove in two Cincinnati runs with a single and his 21st home run of the season.

"I would like to win big," the native Cuban added with a broad grin, "but I guess the close games are better for you. They make you play better."

The Reds scored two runs in the first on five consecutive singles off Pirate starter Jim Rooker. But Rooker settled and held the Reds hitless until Perez belted a solo homer in the sixth inning.

"Rooker hung in there. He pitched good ball tonight," said Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson, whose club posted its seventh win in nine games.

The Pirates tagged Reds' starter Ross Grimsley for a run in the second on Richie Zisk's bloop double and a single by Manny Sanguillen.

Then Pittsburgh pulled to a 3-3 tie in the seventh by scoring two runs with the help of a pinch-single by Richie Hebner, who had been benched since his angry verbal battle last weekend with Pirate Manager Bill Virdon.

The Pirates opened the seventh by putting runners at second and third on two singles and a sacrifice bunt.

Manny Sanguillen came home when the first pitch from reliever Clay Carroll got away from catcher Bill Plummer. Then Hebner stroked a single to right to score Dave Cash with the tying run.

But the Reds won the game with a two-run spurt in the ninth that began when Bench doubled to left and took third when the ball skipped past outfielder Willie Stargell for an error.

Cesar Geronimo, running for Bench, scored the first run in the ninth on a single by Andy Kosco. Pete Rose later singled off Pirate reliever Ramon Hernandez to score Kosco with what proved to be the winning run.

"Hernandex is a heck of a pitcher," said Rose, who extended his hitting streak to 16 games with a first-inning single.

"He made a good pitch, down and away," Rose added, "but I went with it.

"I like to get a chance at another time at bat," Rose continued, "because I'm confident I'll come through."

The Pirates rallied in the ninth but fell short.

After singles by Rennie Stennett and Dal Maxvill, relief pitcher Tom Hall struck out Gene Alley. Gene Clines hit a grounder to Darrell Chaney for a forceout at second, but Joe Morgan's relay to first was wild and Stennett scored.

But Hall got Pirate pinchitter Milt May to ground out to Perez at first to end the game.

Weather no obstacle for county gridders

Things have picked up right where they left off a year ago as far as weather conditions are concerned for Fayette County's high school football teams.

Rain hampered the county gridders on six of the 10 playing dates last fall and it appears that showers are going to be a nuisance this summer as it has rained during each of the practice sessions for Washington C.H. and Miami Trace since high school football drills officially opened Monday.

ALTHOUGH IT would seem that the rain would prove bothersome, the coaching staffs sometimes greet the wet weather as it provides a chance for their charges to handle wet footballs in addition to practicing footing on the soggy turf.

The prospective candidates at both Washington C.H. and Miami Trace practiced through Tuesday's early morning showers, placing heavy emphasis again on physical conditioning.

The Ohio High School Athletic Association requires four days of summer physical conditioning before full-scale contact. Both teams will don pads on Thursday and begin contact at Friday's practice sessions.

At the Washington C.H. camp, four more of veteran head coach Maurice Pfeifer's prospective candidates completed the Blue Lions' mandatory six-minute mile, leaving only nine players to reach that requirement before summer practice ends. On the opening day of practice, 34 of the 48 Blue Lion players completed the running requirement.

Pfeifer blended offensive drills with the physical conditioning at Tuesday's practices. The veteran Blue Lion mentor installed one new running play and a new passing play as well as placing heavy emphasis on the kicking game.

Mistakes plagued Miami Trace's practice sessions as the players were acquainting themselves with a brand new offense while making defensive adjustments.

But, new head coach Fred Zechman commented that "we expect these mistakes at this early stage of practice." The Panthers lost 14 seniors through graduation and more than half of the candidates at the Miami Trace camp are sophomores.

ZECHMAN PRAISED the performances of juniors Jeff Smithson and Steve Southworth in the defensive secondary along with seniors Doug Baker and Dusty Ruth. Zechman is especially pleased with Baker's performance. The fleet halfback was sidelined with an injury as a sophomore and did not play his junior year.

The Panther coaching staff worked on the running game Tuesday, installing a "belly series" and held skull sessions with the defensive players.

Zechman also singled out the performance of junior Tom Riley at the quarterback position. Riley has been "working real hard" at the quarterback spot, according to the new Panther boss.

The two county teams have over a week and a half to practice before plunging into their first interscholastic scrimmages of the summer. Washington C.H. will travel to Kettering Fairmont West while Miami Trace will play Unioto Saturday, Aug. 25.

Jr. hi grid call issued

A meeting will be held for all Washington C.H. junior high and freshman football candidates at 2:30 p.m. Friday at Washington Senior High School.

Coach Rodger Mickle said all seventh, eighth and ninth graders interested in football should attend the meeting.

Scioto Scarlet-Gray series draws tightly-matched field

COLUMBUS — An even dozen outstanding sophomore pacers have been entered in the $12,000 Scarlet and Gray Cup Series Thursday night at Scioto Downs.

The field is so closely matched that no less than four of the entrants have been tagged as the early pre-race choices.

The Joe O'Brien stable entry of Steady Airliner and Tassel's Knot will battle with Faraway Bay, Dick Burton's rapidly improving pacing sensation, and Honey Cane, Delaware's hope in the Little Brown Jug.

STEADY AIRLINER is the key figure in the O'Brien stable entry. Owned by John Colvin, of Dayton, Tenn., Steady Airliner capped a brilliant two-year-old season with a successful time trail effort of 1:58.2 at Lexington, Ky. This season, the sturdy son of Steady Beau, has posted three victories including a 1:59 dazzler at Scioto Downs.

Faraway Bay, owned by Art Meyring, of Dayton, took his two-year-old mark of 1:57.4 in a heat of the Fox Stakes at Indianapolis, defeating the highly-regarded Ricci Reenie Time. The son of Race Time was brought around slowly by Buxton this year after suffering smoke inhalation in a barn fire at the Champaign County Fairgrounds at Urbana. He climaxed a series of starts at Scioto Downs with an easy wire-to-wire jaunting 2:00.3.

On Aug. 4, Honey Cane zoomed into national prominence with a dramatic comeback victory in 2:00.3. with 18-year-old Billy Williams in the sulky at Scioto Downs. Since that time, the colt has posted seven straight wins.

Because of multiple ownership in two different horses from the George Sholty stable and the Gene Riegle stable, both stables must go as a Sholty-Riegle stable entry in the wagering Thursday.

Charter Captain, the swift son of Meadow Skipper racing out of the Sholty stable, and Jessee Hanover from the Riegle stable, are both owned by Dr. Paul Soldner, of Springfield, and Dale and Floyd Miller, of Archbold.

Charter Captain has been improving each week with Bill Herman driving. The speedy sophomore took his mark of 2:02.2 at Vernon Downs a few weeks ago. Jessee Hanover is well-known to Scioto Downs fans after pacing in 2:00 for Alan Riegle in early June.

The second half of the Sholty stable entry is Billy Joe Byrd, owned by Bill Sherman, of Dayton. The second colt in Riegle stable is Our Bret.

ONE OF the outstanding three-year-olds that can't be overlooked is Arapaho from the Howard Beissinger stable. Bill Henman has Hasty Retreat and Charlie Greene has Cita Square and Archie McNeil has Osborne Creed to complete the Scarlet and Gray Cup field.

Of the 12 Scarlet and Gray Cup starters that are also eligible for the Little Brown Jug are Billy Joe Byrd, Charter Captain, Jessee Hanover, Our Bret, Steady Airliner, Faraway Bay and Honey Cane. This group plus Osborne Creed are also eligible to the $25,000 Jug Preview at Scioto Downs Sept. 6.

Fast pitch tourney delayed due to rain

FINDLAY, Ohio (AP)—The finals of the Ohio Fast Pitch Softball Tournament were postponed Tuesday night because of rain and were rescheduled for tonight.

Columbus Ramada Inn was to play Greenfield Penn Trucking at 5:30 p.m. in the opener. The winner of that game was to face Kidron Merchants at 7 p.m. for the championship.

Unitas seeks $750,000

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Colts have stripped Johnny Unitas of his player's uniform, but they may have a more difficult time throwing off his court suit.

The 40-year-old quarterback, benched last October and then traded to San Diego after the 1972 season, has sued the National Football League club for $725,000 on charges of malicious breach of contract.

The suit, filed Tuesday in Baltimore Superior Court, involves both compensating and punitive damages. Lewis A. Noonberg, one of Unitas' attorneys, said there was no attempt to have NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle arbitrate.

According to the suit, Colts' General Manager Joe Thomas had made it impossible for Unitas to carry out a contract signed in 1970 with Carroll Rosenbloom, former owner of the Baltimore franchise.

Thomas, who joined the Colts when Robert Irsay became the owner in July, 1972, declined comment on the suit, saying the matter was in the hands of the club's attorneys.

Slumping Cubs lose despite Fergy fury

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Guinness, stop your presses. A couple of world's records were set Tuesday in Chicago.

In the category of most bats thrown by a right-handed pitcher leaving the game, the record is now four.

And for the category of most bats landing between the mound and home, thrown by a right-handed pitcher, the record is also four.

Ferguson Jenkins, the owner of these two marks, was noticeably touched by the world records. "I don't have anything to say. You don't mind, do you?"

A three-run Atlanta fifth sent him to the showers with his 12th defeat in 22 decisions. As Jenkins, loser in six of his last seven starts, ambled off the mound the Chicago fans let him know they had had enough.

They booed.

Jenkins indicated he, too, had had enough.

He threw bats. Four of them, all sailing harmlessly between the mound and home plate.

But Jenkins' heaves had no effect on the baseball game's final score: Atlanta 6, Chicago 2—the ninth straight loss for the staggering Cubs.

In the other National League action, Cincinnati squeaked by Pittsburgh 5-4, St. Louis pounded Houston 9-5, San Diego blanked New York 9-0, Philadelphia edged San Francisco 4-3 and Los Angeles overcame Montreal 4-3.

Reds 5, Pirates 4

About the only difference between the Reds and the Pirates is a run here and a run there. The Pirates had that extra run Monday night while the Reds had it Tuesday night, taking the game 5-4.

Andy Kosco's ninth-inning single scored pinch-runner Cesar Geronimo with the tiebreaking run and the Reds held on despite the Pirates' ninth-inning rally.

Cards 9, Astros 5

The Cardinals were down 5-0 and apparently headed for their ninth straight loss when they rallied for five runs in the sixth and four more in the seventh and all of a sudden they had a one-game winning streak after dropping eight in a row.

Dodgers 4, Expos 3

Pinch hitter Ken McMullen ripped a two-out, two-run homer in the ninth inning to dramatically lift the Dodgers over Montreal 4-3.

Bill Russell's two-out single had kept the Dodgers' hopes alive and then McMullen slugged his fourth homer of the year to win it.

Padres 9, Mets 0

Rookie Dave Winfield drove in four runs and rookie lefthander Randy Jones pitched an eight-hitter, pacing the Padres to a 9-0 blanking of the Mets for their third straight victory.

Phils 4, Giants 3

Greg Luzinski belted his 20th and 21st homers of the year while Jim Lonborg's spaced 11 hits in Philadelphia's 4-3 victory over San Francisco.

Gloster Richardson faces police charges

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Browns owner Art Modell said he will not comment on the drug and traffic charges filed against Browns wide receiver Gloster Richardson.

"I have to wait until all the facts are revealed," Modell said Tuesday.

Richardson has been charged with possession of marijuana, driving without a license, driving while intoxicated and leaving the scene of an accident.

Forgotten Concannon finally gets chance

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Veteran Jack Concannon, the forgotten man of the Dallas Cowboys quarterback corps, will finally get a chance to show his stuff.

After spending all of last season watching Roger Staubach and Craig Morton spark the Cowboy attack, Concannon will own the spotlight for National Football League club's preseason game against the New Orleans Saints Saturday night.

For the first quarter, anyway.

"Concannon will open and go for a quarter," Dallas coach Tom Landry said Tuesday. "We'll play all three quarterbacks."

And, despite the fact that Staubach and Morton have a decided edge on Concannon for the No. 1 spot on the Cowboy staff, Concannon's performance might change things around. Coach Landry hasn't made his final decision yet.

"I hope we can decide by the start of the season," Landry said, adding importance to Concannon's performance Saturday night.

The Miami Dolphins, meanwhile, are set at quarterback but unsure of a number of other players as they prepare for their meeting with the Chicago Bears. Offensive tackle Doug Crusan sprained both knees and one ankle, while linemate Norm Evans suffered a shoulder injury in last week's victory over the New Orleans Saints. Another question mark as the Dolphins try for their 22nd consecutive victory is running back Larry Csonka, who has a bruised leg muscle.

The Cleveland Browns practiced without five starters out with minor injuries incurred in last week's exhibition game against Los Angeles. Defensive tackle Walter Johnson, wide receiver Frank Pitts, running backs Bo Scott and Ken Brown and center Bob DeMarco were out of action.

The Denver Broncos obtained veteran linebacker Bill Laskey from the Baltimore Colts for an undisclosed draft choice, then placed defensive backs Steve Preece and Bill West on waivers.

New England also released two players, placing linebacker Henry Moore and quarterback Dan Werner on waivers.

Paul Brown of the Cincinnati Bengals announced the acquisition of a free agent, safety Rick Seifert, a rookie from Ohio State who had been dropped recently by the New York Jets.

A give-and-take spirit must prevail now or you will find that you have plenty of opposition — much of it needless. Make a genuine effort to avoid contention.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

An inner voice may rebel against certain intended action. Listen! As the old saying goes: when in doubt, don't.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Do not be anxious if things are not working out quite the way you expected. You are on the right track, so keep going. A good day for making decisions.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov 22)

Personal relationships under somewhat adverse influences. Be especially alert to meddling relatives who could put a blight on your romance.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

There are those who would take advantage of your good nature now. Do not be led by emotion and sympathy to overcommit yourself or to act against your intuition and experience.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Extra caution needed now. As with Sagittarius, don't indulge in misplaced idealism or waste assets on lost causes.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Uranus in highly propitious position. New opportunities in the offing. Also, you can look for a favorable outcome to a confidential discussion.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to Mar. 20)

Your judgment somewhat "cloudy" now. Take nothing for granted, even if all seems well. And, above all, make no hasty decisions.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a bright and vivacious personality; are a combination of practicality and idealism and sometimes take yourself too seriously. You are a staunch defender of your principles and beliefs, but may be too outspoken at times. Extremely versatile, there are many fields in which you could excel, notably: the stage, journalism, teaching, art and medicine. If attracted to the law, you could become an outstanding statesman.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — KNBCTV used to hold the national record for television's longest weekday news show — two hours, from 5 to 7 p.m. But KMEX-TV now owns the title — its news show runs 8½ hours.

That's right, 8½ hours. It starts at 6:30 a.m. and ends at 3 p.m. Four anchormen keep things going, each doing two hours on the air in a visual version of all-news radio with live, film and videotape offerings.

Like KNBC, KMEX is in Los Angeles, a good television town where innovations seem to occur two or three years before New York gets wind of them and orders duplicates made.

KMEX, a UHF station whose viewing audience primarily is Mexican-American, began its all-news effort six weeks ago, according to Danny Villanueva, the station's vice president and general manager.

Prior to that, the station didn't go on the air until 3:30 p.m., he said. Villanueva said the marathon news program initially began with a heavy emphasis on stock market reports, aiming at the business community.

But Rene Anselmo, president of KMEX's parent company, the New York-based Spanish International Network, preferred more of a news approach. Changes were made a week after the show began, Villanueva said.

He says it now has a magazine-type format, with 10 minutes of hard news each half hour as well as features and reports on a variety of topics — leisure, business, education, aerospace and consumer news.

The show also has stock market updates, weather and sports reports. Three of the last are done by Villanueva, a former weekend sportscaster on KNBC-TV and a field goal specialist for the Los Angeles Rams and Dallas Cowboys before television beckoned.

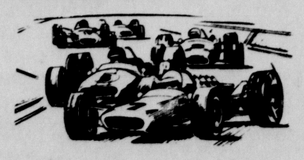

"I tell you, you've never seen people work so hard," he said of his 20-member news staff. "But they've been just like troupers. They sense that we're doing something that's never been done before, that we're revolutionizing our industry."

How's the sponsorship picture?

"It's coming around," he said. "But it's been rough. The first big company to really say, 'We support the fact you're doing something different in this stagnant industry' was General Foods...

"I'll tell you, we are hurting. The financial drain is just incredible. We're hanging on, but it's cost $200,000 so far."

Anti-theft devices said not helpful

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston detective says anti-theft devices on new cars help very little in preventing a car from being stolen.

"The professionals always seem to find the ways and means to take cars they want," burglary and theft Det. J.D. Hunt says.

Late model cars have been rolling off the assembly lines equipped with what manufacturers call improved ignition safety systems and other items such as locking steering wheel mechanisms. Burglary alarms on a few makes of cars were offered as optional equipment.

"A big screw driver is usually all it takes to break the steering wheel locks," Hunt says. "And thieves have even used wrenches to haul away some cars."

Hunt says the last real improvement on cars came a few years ago when one manufacturer stopped making ignitions where the car could be started without the key — in the "off" instead of "lock" position.

"That was changed and it probably had some effect on the 'joy riding' thieves," Hunt says.

At present, more than 60 per cent of the Newfoundland government's revenues come from the Canadian federal government.

Measles vaccinations planned in Vienna

VIENNA (AP) — The Vienna Health Department will start a vaccination program against German measles during the next school term that will extend to all 13-year-old girls in the Austrian capital. It is hoped this will prevent birth defects caused by the mother's infection with the disease during pregnancy.

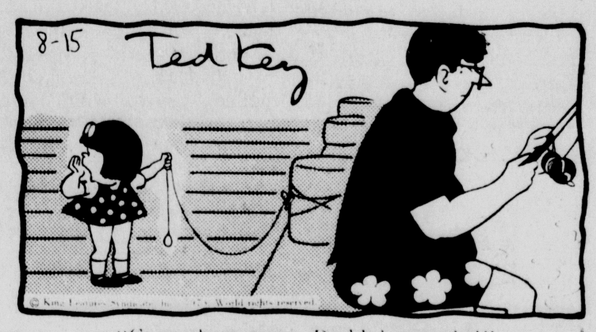

As a matter of course, all new mothers in Vienna are inoculated against the virus.

Since last March, all new school teachers have been undergoing examinations to determine their resistance to rubella.

County man injured; sports car damaged

A Fayette County man was injured late Tuesday night when his sports car crashed into a fence and tree on Flakes Ford Road, a mile west of Locust Grove Road, the Sheriff's department reported.

Released following treatment in Memorial Hospital was the driver of the car, John J. Grdina, III, 42, of 2170 Dorthea Dr. He sustained a broken nose and multiple lacerations.

Investigating officers said Grdina was eastbound when he apparently steered to the right on a sharp curve to avoid an oncoming car. His sports car ran onto the berm and went out of control into the fence and tree.

The 1971 model car was heavily damaged. Grdina was not cited in the 10:40 p.m. mishap.

Police cited Alva McDaniel, 64, of Minford, for failure to yield the right of way following a collision at the intersection of Washington Avenue and Court Street at 12:06 p.m.

Officers reported McDaniel pulled from the stop sign on Washington Avenue into the path of an eastbound car driven by Mark L. Ruley, 19, of 1025 Lakeview Ave.

There was moderate damage to both cars.

A car driven by Judith A. Leeth, 27, Hillsboro, and a semi-rig driven by Leonard H. Gabbart, 41, Orient, were involved in a minor mishap on the Marathon lot at Court and North Streets at 1:53 p.m. Only slight damage was reported.

A pickup truck driven by Glenn L. Jacobson, 27, Rt. 3, and a car driven by Ralph W. Thomas, 17, Rt. 1, Bloomingburg, collided on the Miami Trace High School lot. There was minor damage.

Flood recovery money

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The U.S. Disaster Assistance Administration has provided $34,518 to help residents of Lake, Lucas and Ashtabula Counties recover from floods.

BIKE RIDE WINNERS—Winners of the Alpha Theta Chapter's charity bicycle ride were awarded prizes for their efforst Monday at the Courthouse. Paul Febo, left, won a portable television set for the most funds raised, David Laytart, center, was the fastest rider, and Debbie Cremeans was second in the amount of money raised.

Exposure incident, theft investigated

An indecent exposure incident Tuesday afternoon involving two Washington C.H. girls was investigated by city police.

Officers said the two girls, ages 9 and 12, reported they were walking on East Street when a man standing in an alley between North and Sycamore Streets exposed himself. The two said they had noticed the man earlier on Short Street.

Shirley Bass, of 907 John St., reported that $14 in food stamps had been removed from her purse sometime Tuesday afternoon. She said the stamps were apparently taken by a friend visiting her home. No charge was filed.

Lester D. Coil, Rt. 1, Bloomingburg, reported to sheriff's deputies that a nameplate has been removed from his mailbox. The incident occurred sometime after Friday he said. Damage was set at $10.

State distributes Homestead monies

Fayette County received $47,182.06 in the state's first reimbursement for granting homestead exemptions to elderly landowners. The county received an additional $943.64 to cover administrative costs.

Homeowners aged 65 years or more with incomes of less than $8,000 per year are eligible for the exemption under a law passed by the General Assembly in 1972.

The state Auditor's office distributed $24,016,588.93 to 81 of Ohio's counties as reimbursement for homestead exemptions. Seven counties have not yet certified their exemptions to the Auditor.

Lookout House falls in flames

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — A burned out shell and a smoky haze are all that if left today of the Lookout House, which catered Cincinnati area residents' tastes from bootleg whisky and gambling to plush entertainment for three decades.

The Kentucky Fire Marshal's office has been asked to investigate the $2.5 million blaze. The cause was not determined.

Firemen in suburban Fort Wright continued to pour water on burning embers today after four area departments fought the blaze unsuccessfully.

Only one fireman was injured slightly. All equipment was moved across the Dixie Highway before the massive threestory front wall collapsed into the street.

The entertainment palace was undergoing renovation by its new owners, Ohio Real Estate Investment Corp.

They planned to reopen it in September as a plush restaurant that catered to parties. Plush entertainment was to be abolished.

The Lookout House, since 1962, was the flagship of "Gormet Strip" on the Dixie Highway just south of Covington. One by one, the restaurants closed as Cincinnatians began buying liquor on Sunday in their own state.

The nearby White Horse Tavern burned to the ground Feb. 17, 1972 at a loss of $300,000. The cause was never determined.

The Lookout House determined its name from its location, first owned by a German locksmith in 1886 who built the first part of the building. It was considered the highest point in Kenton County.

The Lookout House opened as a big time gambling house in 1933 owned by the late James H. Brink, who later told the Kefauver Crime Investigating Committee he earned the money for it "with a little bootlegging."

Brink, reputed gambling boss of Northern Kentucky in the 1930s, 1940s and 1950s, was killed mysteriously in 1952. His private plane blew up over an airport near Atlanta, Ga. Police found $24,000 in cash in bundles of $100 bills in the plane.

County receives 'rollback' funds

Fayette County was reimbursed $113,303.76 in property tax rollback funds based on the last half of 1971, according to the state Auditor's office.

The 10 per cent property tax rollback was authorized by the General Assembly last year.

The total reimbursement for the state's 88 counties amounted to $61,272,418.94. The Auditor's office is in the process of making reimbursements for rollbacks on property taxes for the first half of 1972.

Redman earnings up

Redman Industries, Inc., Dallas, Tex., parent company of Redman Mobile Homes, Inc., reported that its July revenues were up by 11 per cent over those of July, 1972.

Revenues for the month totaled $27,682,000, compared to $24,999,000 in July, 1972.

There was an 18 per cent increase in the revenues of Redman Mobile Homes, Inc., which leased a plant in Arkansas during July and is opening three new plants in August.
